TURKEY GIVES UP ALL WARENDED

MANY URGE PASSAGE OF FOOD BILLS

Women and men interested in the fight for pure food in Massachusetts gathered today in room No. 453 at the State House to discuss important food bills that are before the Committee on Agriculture.

Among those who appeared in favor of the bills were students from the domestic economy course in Simmons College.

The meeting was set for three o'clock. Some of those interested in the measures began to reach the State House at 2:15. Among the early arrivals was Harry F. Cassidy of the AMERICAN, who is interested in securing pure food legislation in this State.

The joint Legislative Committee on Agriculture, before which the bills were discussed, consists of fifteen members. The meeting was presided over by Senator Charles Edward Buckland.

The bills have to do legislation in connection with the sale of cheese and the requiring of a certain standard for the cheese. The fixing of a standard for butter and oleomargarine is also provided in one of the bills.

The bills have the backing of the Law Department of the city of Boston; the State Association of Milk Inspectors; of the State Board of Health and the State Dairy Commission. Men representing retail dealers in the State oppose the bills.

MORGAN PARTNER TELLS HOW BANKERS PROTECTED SELVES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—H. P. Davison of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., before the Pujo Money Trust Committee today explained the details of the transactions whereby Morgan's firm obtained an interest in the First National Bank of New York, Liberty National Bank, National Bank of Commerce, Bankers' Trust Company, Astor Trust Company and the Guaranty Trust Company. The latter, who said, was controlled by Morgan when he purchased 6,000 shares of stock held by Mrs. E. H. Harriman. The purpose was to merge the Guaranty Trust Company with the Bankers Trust Company and so put both under the voting trust established in the latter. "What advantage would it have been to a minority stockholder to go into this voting trust?"

We were not considering that. Our plan at the time was to preclude the purchase over night of a control by persons active in New York at that time whom we considered irresponsible and who were supposed to be promoters. When we originated the Bankers' Trust Company we desired to maintain permanent control and there was no serious thought of an objection to a voting trust which was to prevent the purchase of the stock controlled by an outsider.

ROCKEFELLER OFF TO JEKYL ISLAND

FERDINAND, Ila., Jan. 23.—William Rockefeller of the Standard Oil Company, whose testimony is desired by the Pujo committee, sailed from here today for Jekyl Island, off the coast of Georgia.

Mr. Rockefeller's sudden departure from Palm Beach yesterday was shrouded in mystery, and it was not until today that he was located.

The departure of the oil magnate from Florida may thwart the plans of the Money Trust Committee, as Samuel Untermeyer, counsel for the committee had been delegated to go to Palm Beach to see for himself whether Mr. Rockefeller is too ill, as his physician Dr. Chappell of New York claims, to testify before the committee.

50,000,000 TYPHOID GERMS "A MILD DOSE"

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—Colonel W. B. Banister of the Medical Corps, U. S. A., during a discussion before the Chicago Medical Society on Serum Treatment and Prevention of Typhoid Fever, said that 50,000,000 typhoid germs in a serum injection is an "infinitesimal dose."

WILSON WANTS NO CEREMONY

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 23.—President elect Wilson today put his foot down hard on the dissensions and bickerings of the Congressional committee and the citizens' committee in charge of the inaugural arrangements in Washington, by saying that he would be pleased if all the plans were cancelled, and he could be inaugurated without ostentation.

"I will be contented with any agreement they make," said Mr. Wilson. "Even if they make no arrangements at all I will not care."

Representative Covington of Maryland called upon the President-elect to urge him to inspect the Panama Canal before the water is turned in.

"I am very anxious to make that trip and still do so if it can be arranged," said Mr. Wilson. "It will depend on how long the special session of Congress lasts. The program is to put to the administration of the canal zone in the hands of the President and it is obviously desirable that I should see it."

At once the President-elect received a delegation of North Carolinians headed by Josephus Daniels, who came to offer Mr. Wilson a free home and for his Asheville, N. C., and invite him to spend part of the year there.

The President-elect will go to Philadelphia tomorrow to visit his dentist. Seats for the newspaper men will be provided around the dentist's chair, but no photographers will be admitted," said Mr. Wilson, jokingly, to the newspapermen.

BOSTON WOMEN TO MARCH AT CAPITAL

A number of Boston suffragists are to take part in the big "Votes for Women" parade in Washington on March 5. Among the Boston suffrage leaders will be Mrs. H. S. Lincoln, her daughter, Miss Lincoln, Mrs. A. B. Stephens and others. Miss Amy E. Acton, Miss Caroline J. Cook and other Boston women lawyers will also appear in the line of march among the delegations of women lawyers from every State in the Union. All the suffragists will carry pennants and distribute literature.

FITZHUGH QUITS CENTRAL VERMONT

ST. ALBANS, Vt., Jan. 23.—At a special meeting of the directors of the Central Vermont Railroad here today, President E. H. Fitzhugh resigned.

R. J. Chamberlain of Montreal, president of the Grand Trunk, was elected president of the Central Vermont, to succeed Mr. Fitzhugh.

Former Governor E. T. Smith was elected to the executive committee, to fill Mr. Fitzhugh's place there, and E. A. Chittenden of St. Albans was elected to Mr. Fitzhugh's position as director.

INSANE PATROLMAN GETS INTO CONVENT

HOLYOKE, Jan. 23.—Patrolman Walter Murray, connected with the police force for eleven years, and who has been ill for a long time and returned to work today, went violently insane and took refuge in the basement of the St. Paul's Convent on Northampton street. The strange actions of the policeman caused considerable excitement in the convent. Policemen were sent to take care of Murray. It became necessary finally to put handcuffs on him. He was taken to the hospital at Northampton.

COLEMAN TO END TESTIMONY TODAY

George W. Coleman, the cashier who wrecked the National City Bank of Cambridge, is expected to finish his testimony today in the suit of Received John L. Bates of the bank against the bank's directors. Coleman testified before Judge Robert G. Harris at the Suffolk County Courthouse. The writ on which Coleman was brought from Greendeld jail to Boston extends until Saturday.

MUCK ILL, CRACK TO LEAD SYMPHONY

Owing to the illness of Dr. Carl Muck, Mr. Frack will conduct the Symphony concert tomorrow and Saturday.

British Chancellor Pledges His Support to Votes for Women

LONDON, Jan. 23.—A picturesque and mother deputation of suffragettes called upon David Lloyd George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, at the Treasury building today, to pledge the support of the Cabinet amendment to the franchise granting votes to women. The Chancellor said he would certainly support the amendment.

Among the women were school teachers, nurses, actresses, laundresses, factory employes, mill hands, clerks, sewers, fisher girls and stenographers. The factory girls were dressed in ragged garments and their heads were covered with old shawls, and the fisher girls and weavers wore the short skirts used in their work.

Woe to Woman Who Smokes Cigarettes, Says Greenwood

"Any woman who smokes cigarettes is immoral or will be before she finishes with the cigarette habit," declared Representative Fred T. Greenwood of Everett today at a hearing before the legislative Committee on Public Health.

He appeared for a bill to provide a fine of $50 for any person who gives or sells tobacco in any form to a woman. He was the only person to appear on the matter. There was no opposition.

"Woman has been placed upon a high pedestal in Massachusetts," he said, "and it is important to keep her there. There is a large and increasing sale of cigarettes, and women are smoking them more and more each year."

He charged, in conclusion, that the cigarette law is being violated at present by manufacturers, who put tickets to moving pictures shown in the packages.

Four Women Give Mute Approval of Long Hatpin Bill

But four women made their appearance at the hearing before the Legislative Committee on Legal Affairs today, on a bill providing that it shall be unlawful for women to wear unduly protruding hatpins and that each offence shall be punishable by imprisonment of not more than one month or by a fine of not more than $100.

The four women who appeared were elderly matrons and it was noticeable that each wore a turban, and where the hatpin prevailed at all it was not at the front. Less end. They satisfactorily mute through out the hearing.

Representative William M. Robinson of Chelsea and Whitfield Tuck of Winchester were the only persons who went to the front for the bill. The former said that he would rather take his chances with a bullet than with the kind of hatpin the wearing of which the bill sought to prohibit. No opposition appeared, and the hearing was closed.

QUINCY CLEARED ON THREE COUNTS IN MINING TRIAL

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Judge Mayer, in the Federal District Court today, instructed the jury to return a verdict of not guilty in favor of Josiah Quincy, former Mayor of Boston, who is being tried with Julius Hawthorne on charges of illegal use of the mails in selling mining stock, on three out of five counts against him.

The court decided that there was no evidence for conviction against Quincy in the cases of the Tenagmal-Cobalt Mines Limited, the Elk Lane Mines Limited and the Montreal-James Mines Limited.

Two counts still hold against Quincy in the disposition of the Nipissing Mines, Hawthorne Silver & Iron Mines Company.

Judge Mayer was sitting in place of Judge Hough, who is ill. The trial will be resumed Monday.

AMHERST STUDENT'S BRIDE A BIGAMIST

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Jan. 23.—Mrs. May Kelly of Phillips place, Brooklyn, a chorus girl, pleaded guilty to a charge of bigamy in the County Court and was freed upon probation. Mrs. Kelly married William B. Enright, a former student in Amherst College, while her first husband was a prisoner in Blackwell's Island Jail.

FORAKER GIVEN LIE IN OIL CASE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—A white man, and not a negro, furnished the Standard Oil letters. He was he, accompanied by any one else," declared Charles P. J. Mooney, formerly managing editor of the New York AMERICAN, before the Clapp campaign fund investigating committee today.

This is a new version of the manner in which William R. Hearst came into possession of the letters, and not only in this detail, but in other matters did Mr. Mooney contradict the statements of Senator Foraker and his negro assistant, Gilcarist Stewart, but declared that two negroes abstracted the letters from the office of John D. Archbold and sold them. Mooney said that his information related to six letters which he saw between November, 1904, and May, 1905. The white man who offered to sell them came to his office and asked for John L. Eddy, who had gone to Boston.

"Damnable State of Affairs."

I saw that the letters related to dealings between Senators, public officials and the Standard Oil Company. The man offered to sell the letters, but I refused to have anything to do with the original. I had the letters photographed, because I thought they would be valuable in showing the people a "damnable state of affairs," as I said at the time. The man said he had come by them honestly. I replied that it made no difference, that I would not deal with the originals. Photographs then were made.

"Senator Needed $1,000."

Mooney said that one letter was from a Pennsylvania Congressman to Archbold, informing him that a certain Senator needed $1,000, and inquiring whether Archbold cared to make the investment. This same Congressman, he said, in 1905 had made a speech for free silver in which he attacked the Standard Oil.

"There were other letters," said Mooney, "involving the passage of money between public men and John D. Archbold, but I did not purchase them as they were not indicative of a reasonable attempt to buy United States Senatorships."

Mooney stated that he did not know the name of the man who had the letters. He did not mention the name of the Congressman or the Senator involved.

SEIZE 'ADULTERATED' BARLEY IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—Three carloads of barley were seized by Federal authorities here under a court order charging violation of the pure food laws. It is known as "feed barley" and is supposed to be placed on the market solely for stock food, but the Federal authorities say there is nothing to prevent it being sold for human consumption.

COURTHOUSE MAN STABBED IN ROW

In a row over a shift in hours, John Sheridan, a Courthouse fireman, stabbed Michael Crosson, another fireman, twice with a jackknife, and Sheridan was before Judge Creed today charged with assault. Sheridan said that Crosson hit him in the face, and that, trying to pinion Crosson's arms, he accidentally stabbed him with a knife. Judge Creed found Sheridan not guilty and discharged him.

GERMANS TO MAKE THEIR OWN RAIN

BERLIN, Jan. 23.—An appropriation to assist private experiments in Germany to produce artificial rain was asked for in a resolution passed by the Imperial Parliament and addressed to the German government. The vote was taken amid scenes of general merriment.

COLLINS HELD FOR CHRISTMAS TRAGEDY

Michael J. Collins, accused of slaying his mother-in-law, Joseph W. McLaughlin, was arraigned today at East Cambridge for murder and pleaded not guilty. He was held without bail for trial.

ACTRESS BRIDE OF BROWN

Hood Haskell Brown of Brookline, who recently won a legal fight with his stepmother for his inheritance of the millions left by his father, the late Samuel Brown, today married a burlesque actress known on the stage as "Idylia Vance," according to a report that flew about theatrical circles.

The report was that Brown and the actress were married in a Rock Bay hotel.

"Idylia Vance" is, or was lately, a widow. Her name was Mrs. Keane. She played last year at a Boston burlesque house.

The report of the wedding created a great stir in local theatrical circles. The idea that one of the burlesque favorites had married a man of such social position and tremendous wealth as Brown was food for endless chatter among the chorus girls, dancers, ingenues, soubrettes and "leading ladies" now gracing the local burlesque stage.

Lives in Brookline.

Mr. Brown has been occupying apartments at Brandon Hall in Brookline. He was not there this afternoon.

Last Summer Boston, Brookline and Swampscott were stirred by the probable contest that was shaping over the millions left by Samuel N. Brown, vice-president and general manager of the Fitchburg Steam Company.

Mr. Brown married Mrs. Charlotte Thompson Bradford, a comely widow, on October 10, 1910. He was a widower of eighty-four. His second wife was half his age. The marriage created a sensation.

Reports of quarrels between Mr. Brown and his son, Harold Haskell Brown, were rife. It was said that the second marriage caused it.

Mr. Brown died June 4, 1911, at the New Denny House, Swampscott. He owned his home. It was there he met Mrs. Bradford, who was a guest in the summer season.

Son Was Cut Off.

The son was practically cut off. Young Brown received only $1,000. The testator said, however, that the son had already received considerable property from him. Practically all the property was left to the widow, who was named executrix.

Sherman L. Whipple, counsel for the son, gave notice three weeks later that the will would be contested. It was reported that undue influence would be alleged.

Mrs. Brown said the son was rich in his own right, that her personal was in the right mind when he died, that she only wished to carry out her husband's wishes and would have been content if the entire estate had gone to the son.

The case was settled, however, without a trial. It was announced that a large part of the property was to be awarded to the son. Mr. Brown recently came into possession of his share.

JAIL IS URGED FOR DRUNKEN AUTOISTSS

A jail sentence for persons who operate automobiles while under the influence of intoxicating liquor was urged before the Legislative Committee on Roads and Bridges at the State House today. Among those who advocated such legislation were Representative Fred P. Greenwood of Everett, James Fortescue, secretary of the Massachusetts State Automobile Association, William C. Thimeson, counsel for the Automobile Legal Association, C. Lawrence Brooks of the Highway Safety League and Mrs. Charlotte Smith, president of the Women's Homestead Association.

MAN HELD FOR KNIFE ASSAULT IN BROOKLINE

A mysterious quarrel in an apartment at No. 49 St. Mary's street, Brookline, early today, which resulted in the slashing of E. S. Cameron, whose home is at that address, caused a stir in the Brookline police court this noon when William A. Grant, a colored chauffeur, was held in $500 bail for the assault.

The fight created a disturbance that awoke that section of Brookline at 1 a. m. Policemen who heard the racket rushed to the place and arrested Grant. After an investigation they produced Grant in court today, but Cameron was too severely hurt to appear and the case was put over until next Monday. The police withheld the details, but admitted enough to indicate that the hearing if held, will excite much interest in Brookline.

All that could be gathered from the police was that E. H. Spaulding of No. 27 Everett street, Winchester—Grant's employer—was calling at a house at No. 49 St. Mary's street. Cameron returned to the place, and the police say, objected to Spaulding's presence. A fight is alleged to have followed.

Grant became involved in the quarrel, according to the police, and Cameron was cut by a knife in the hands of the colored chauffeur.

Patrolman Patrick J. Reagan arrested Grant and arraigned him before Judge Pierce this today. He found sureties for the $500.

Women "Ballyhoo" Suffrage Meeting by Bugle From Auto

Loud bugle calls through the business district this noon let the public know that the women of the Massachusetts Political Equality Union was out to be enlisted again. This time it was to call everyone's attention to the fact that there will be a suffrage mass meeting in Tremont Temple next Saturday night.

The woman suffragists were in a touring car, followed by another car filled with admiring reporters. On the front seat of the M. P. E. U. car was Mrs. Ella Donovan, blowing lustily on a bugle. In the tonneau were Mrs. C. I. White, Mrs. Charles Henry Russell, Miss L. Hall and Mrs. Susan W. Fitzgerald (with a megaphone).

When Mrs. Donovan ceased tugging for a moment Mrs. Fitzgerald talked through her megaphone. She called attention particularly to the big number one of the 50 workers and announcing the mass meeting. Then she talked about the mass meeting, explaining that Dr. Anna Shaw, Mrs. Mary Chamberlain and Ignatius McNally will speak and that former Speaker Joseph Walker will preside.

SULTAN TO PAY FOR DELAYS

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The Turkish war is over.

Turkey has given up everything.

The Ottoman Empire yields territory and as much money as the Powers shall demand.

The only question remaining, therefore, is the chancelleries of Europe, is the size of the indemnity that Turkey must pay to the victorious Balkan Allies.

The Allies, it is known, will demand every payment for their war costs and more. Already rumor sets the figure at not under $200,000,000.

M. Novakovitch, former Premier of Servia, says:

The Turks have recovered their reason finally. But why didn't they do so six weeks ago instead of waiting until now? For they must pay what our four armies have been costing us all the time.

To Charge for Each Man.

M. Novakovitch added that the cost per soldier to each of the four allies may figure on the indemnity basis—that is, each Balkan state will take as a basis the number of soldiers it put in the field averaging the cost of each soldier during the time the country was on a war footing.

And the cost "on a war footing" will be much greater, of course, than on a peace basis.

It has been known all along that the Turkish war would come to an end when the European Powers said so.

But the Powers did not wish, if they could avoid it, to have the appearance of dominating the situation. England has Mohammedan subjects in France. It has them in Africa. In deference to these Mohammedan subjects of their own, the Powers tried to allow Turkey to "save her face," as to speak, by settling her affairs in her own way.

Turkish Army Rebels.

But when it becomes apparent that Turkey was incapable of achieving even a solution of its own troubles the Powers spoke.

When the Powers spoke Turkey gave up everything.

From now dispatches from Berlin say that the Turkish army is rebelling at the term

FIVE POLICE SERGEANTS IN A MERRY ROW

Jerry Riordan, the latest recruit sergeant at the East Dedham street police station, believes that the other four sergeants of the precinct—Mullin, Hurley, McCloskey and Hughes—have organized a sort of a combination in restraint of trade against him. They don't let Riordan in on their vice raids. He's a rank outsider.

So Jerry has complained to Superintendent W. H. Pierce. Superintendent Pierce has taken up the matter with Police Commissioner O'Meara and the whole official machinery of the Boston police department has been set in motion to break up the alleged conspiracy against Riordan.

The dignity of office sits heavily on the shoulders of Sergeant Mullin, who is known as Prince Bismarck because of his resemblance to that famous gentleman; of Sergeant Hurley, who is the Beau Brummel of the squad; of Sergeant Hughes, the comedian, and of McCloskey, nackname the Cossack.

When Hughes landed in Station 5 he was kept out of the select circle just as Riordan is. The other sergeants whispered together when Hughes was about, and they did their whispering about the South End as if by themselves and regardless of Hughes.

Hughes decided to organize a solitary wire squad all by himself, so he packed up his face, disguised himself as a tramp and Italian or whatever else suited his fancy, and went out after evidence on his own hook. He became known far and wide and established such a reputation that the other three, evidently fearful of his competition, decided to absorb him.

Riordan is not an adept at disguise or at over clever antics, and since he has been on the outside looking in he has had to depend upon his friendship with patrolmen to get his name into the official papers now and then.

Riordan discovered that he figured in the exact one out of five vice cases in the precinct and, fearing official displeasure, took his grievance to the superintendent himself.

Captain John Driscoll, head of the precinct, has kept out of the little tea party and let the men fight it out for themselves.

PATROLMEN IN FIST FIGHT ON THE STREET

South Boston police circles were stirred today by a story told of a fist fight on the street between two policemen in uniform at the ending of the hour by the opportune arrival of other officers. The men who came to blows were Hugh Garrity and Stephen Higgins, both attached to the City Point Police Station as patrolmen. Both were "on the carpet" today before Captain Thomas Evans at the station house, on charges growing out of their "battle" on K street, South Boston, early last night.

What happened on the street is told differently. Garrity claimed that Higgins struck him first. Higgins claimed Garrity struck the first blow. After each had struck one blow, the two men were separated and escorted to the station. Higgins had a gash over ther light eye, which required several stitches at the hands of Dr. William J. Galligan, former member of the Boston School Committee.

At the station the two men made charges and counter charges to Lieutenant O'Neil who referred the complaints to Captain Evans. Friends of the men said that there had been bad feeling between them since last Summer.

It was expected that Police Commissioner O'Meara would order a trial board to hear the charges against both patrolmen.

INDEMNITY NOW BIG ISSUE OF PEACE PARLEY

of peace, especially at the ceding of Adrianople, which the Turks have obstinately defended.

But no serious attention is being paid to this report, because any Turkish revolution would be short-lived once the Powers have united on a Balkan program.

All that Turkey has left in Europe is Constantinople and the brief strip of territory, about twenty-five miles wide, between the city and the line of Tchatalja forts. These forts marked the limit of the Balkan advance when the armistice of December 3 was signed. The doughty assailants had carved and battered their way from the Bulgar border, past Adrianople, across the Thracian plains to within twenty-five miles of the very Mosque of St. Sophia.

The peace negotiations may be renewed Monday. Foreign Minister Sir Edward Grey, according to the Pall Mall Gazette, has begun arrangements for taking up the details on that date.

The discordant note over the Roumanian boundary is dying away. It is announced that the territorial dispute between Bulgaria and Roumania over what should be Roumania's reward for remaining neutral has been amicably settled.

Endless delicate questions remain to be decided, following the main terms.

An immediate cessation of hostilities between Turkey and Greece, both on the Aegean Sea and in the province of Epirus, is in order now.

Agreements will be made for the surrender of the Turkish fortresses at Adrianople, Janini and Scutari and the withdrawal of the garrisons with all the honors of war.

Difficulty Over Scutari.

There may be difficulty about Scutari, whose Turkish garrison must surrender to someone. Whether that shall be to the Montenegrins, to a provisional Albanian government or to the representatives of the Powers remains to be settled.

King Nicholas of Montenegro, whose troops are surrounding Scutari, insists that he ride into the fortified city at the head of his troops. King Nicholas says that when his generals clamored for an assault on the forts he refused, because he did not wish to sacrifice his comparatively small Montenegrin army in trying to storm such a difficult defence.

But Nicholas says that, if his family is to maintain its position as the royal house of Montenegro, he must enter Scutari in person at the head of his troops.

The effect of the surrender on the general European situation is beneficial.

The demobilization of Austro-Hungarian troops, called forth on account of Balkan complications, has begun, according to dispatches from Berlin.

It is expected that the stock market will respond with confidence to the cessation of war.

Results of the War.

The Balkan war and its results may be summarized as follows:

The combatants—Turkey against the Balkan allies, namely, Montenegro, Servia, Bulgaria and Greece.

The cause—Turkish misrule in her European dependencies and her atrocious treatment of Balkan subjects within her borders.

The break—Montenegro declared war against Turkey early in October. October 17 Turkey declared war on Bulgaria and Servia, and the same day Greece and Servia declared war on Turkey. Bulgaria joined the other allies the next day.

Movements—The Bulgarians invaded from the north, took Kirk Killisch, blockaded Adrianople, swept around that city when they could not capture it, won a bloody battle at Lule Burgas and were hammering at the Tchatalja forts (the Constantinople defences) when an armistice was signed December 3. The Montenegrins, in the west, worked down through Albania to Scutari. Servia won the battle of Kumanovo and took Uskub and Monastir. The Greeks marched north, took Salonika and besieged Janini. They also helped the Serbs take Monastir.

Lasted 52 Days to Armistice.

Length of war—From beginning of hostilities to signing of armistice, fifty-two days; to surrender of Turkey, ninety-seven days.

Relative strength, on land—Turkey, 375,000 men; allies, 460,000.

On sea—Turkey, 53 ships and 39,000 men; allies, 38 ships and 5,000 men.

Cost in lives—150,000 men (estimated).

Indemnity—It is reported the allies will demand $200,000,000.

Cost in territory (to Turkey)—All of European Turkey (60,000 square miles) except the twenty-five-mile strip from Constantinople back to the Tchatalja forts. Turkey also will probably lose the Aegean Islands.

Among the losses must be figured the general decline of European stocks and the demoralization of business in European Turkey and the Balkans.

Big Cotton Men Protest Any Cut in Textile Tariff

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Leading cotton manufacturers of New England appeared before the House Ways and Means Committee today to further protest against a reduction in the duties in the cotton schedule. The fight focussed today on the program of duties submitted by Lewis W. Parker of Greenville, S. C., which it is claimed by the New England men, would be destructive to the New England industry.

The New England cotton men fear that the committee is going to adopt the plan suggested by Parker, which embraces some rates that are higher and some rates that are lower than the Underwood schedule.

It was learned today that before Parker made his suggestions to the committee he consulted Walter A. Langshaw of New Bedford, Mass. Parker's original schedule of duties was much lower than those he presented to the committee, and it was ascertained that Langshaw urged him to make a number of increases.

Joseph F. McDonald, of Providence, R. I., who said he represented "the victims of the cotton business," declared that any protection the cotton might give to the New England manufacturers would be no benefit to the mill workers. "If you are legislating for revenue only" he said "you need not take into consideration protection for labor. There is free trade in labor, and every manufacturer knows it. The laborer is protected only by the price of the steamship passage from Europe. That is all that stands in the way of the most infactuous getting thousands of men and women at a much lower rate of wages than they are now paying."

He said that the manufacturers of Rhode Island in the last campaign organized a tariff publicity league, the object of which was to deceive the people in regard to the tariff. One of the circulars given out in the campaign, he said, was signed by Herbert Bona of Graystone.

Charles M. Howard of the Windsor Print Works of North Adams, Mass., asked the committee to allow a 5 per cent. duty per cent. in the duties on print goods. He said the greatest costs of production were: Labor, 50 per cent.; drugs, 24 per cent, and coal, 6 per cent. All of the three materials of production, he argued, cost fifty per cent. more than in England. Wages ran fifteen to twenty-five per cent. higher than England.

Arthur H. Lowe of Fitchburg, Mass., a manufacturer of gingham, appealed to the committee against heavy reductions in duties.

Try This on Your Husband—if He Drinks

It Makes New Men of Drunkards And Homes Happy

The woman whose husband is a habitual drinker is a martyr—a slave and a victim. The whole family suffers anguish and sometimes want. Why not cure him? Renova has secretly cured hundreds of good men whom drink was dragging down to destruction. Renova costs much less than the potson sold in barrooms and Renova rescues men who have been drunkards for years.

Just do this—go to Riker-Jaynes' and ask for a package of Renova; put a little of it in his tea or coffee and he won't know anything about it, because it is tasteless. The first thing you know he'll be drinking less and less until he just hates the stuff. Wonderful, isn't it? But true. Two hundred men in one town saved by Renova.

If you'd like to try it—free—before you buy a whole package, write in confidence to the Renova Co., 294 Broadway, New York, for a sample and proofs of what Renova does for victims of intemperance.

BIG BONUS VOTE; 36 DAYS MORE IN BIG CONTEST

By THE CONTEST EDITOR.

Only thirty-six more days!

Candidates in the AMERICAN'S $40,000 contest have only five more weeks to battle it out for the fifteen hundred and one prizes.

Some contestants have been saying right along: "Oh, there is plenty of time left in which to make a grand spurt for the finish."

There isn't anything of the kind. You are record near the finish now. You are nearing the golden goal. If you are not hustling now for all you are worth, you might as well give up hope of winning any of the big prizes.

You who are fortunate enough to be enrolled in this contest have the opportunity of a lifetime to reap tremendous rewards for energetic subscription work in the next five weeks.

NOW—today—this very minute—is the time to secure one of the coveted positions in the contest. Let this be your Slogan: NOW or never, and all for ME!

The vote list following next Sunday's standing will be printed in the Sunday AMERICAN, February 9. The polls will close for this list on Monday, February 3, at 3:30 p. m. This list will include all mail matter actually received at Contest Headquarters before that hour on that day.

The February 9 vote list will be the last to be printed before the contest closes on February 25.

It is absolutely essential that every contestant make every day from now until February 28 produce big subscription results.

Here is the new special vote offer:

A special vote bonus will be given on each subscription turned in between Thursday, January 16, and Saturday, February 1, at 10 p. m., as follows:

Sub. term.	Regular value.	Bonus value.	Total.
3 months	1,500 votes	500	2,000
6 months	3,000 votes	1,500	5,000
12 months	7,500 votes	3,500	11,000
Monthly	250 votes	100	350

There will be a new vote list printed in next Sunday's AMERICAN, January 26. This list will be compiled up to Monday, January 20, at 3:30 p. m.

Next Sunday's list will also contain an announcement of the winner of the special automobile prize.

OPERA HOUSE AID BILL KILLED

Mayor Fitzgerald's bill to aid the Boston Opera House will not get the support of city funds. The legislative Committee on Cities has voted down the bill asking that Boston contribute as much to the support of the Opera House as is collected in yearly taxes.

CIVIL SERVICE FOR BUILDING OFFICERS

John J. Mullen of Everett has asked at the State House a petition for a law to place building inspectors and building commissioners in every city of the State except Boston under civil service rules. There will be a hearing tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. in Room 441 at the State House on the Mullen bill.

"Mr. Inveterate Smoker"

It is unnecessary to inform you that the excessive use of TOBACCO leaves an unpleasant taste in the MOUTH, particularly noticeable in the morning. Eminent authorities tell us that the use of tobacco results in the transferrence of microbes to the interior of the mouth. If you MUST smoke TAKE PRECAUTIONS. The daily use of "ODOL" as a MOUTH-WASH is the SAFEGUARD which will render you practically immune from disease germs. Pleasant to the taste and DELIGHTFULLY REFRESHING. "ODOL" will also harden the gums and keep the teeth in a healthy condition. There is nothing "JUST AS GOOD" as "ODOL"

NOTE: Nothing can stay here longer than 30 business days.

Why Do We Say Walk Through Daily?

(1) Because we haven't nearly enough space here to list the hundreds of Bargain lots every day.

(2) Because of broken sizes, extra sizes and odd prices, quantities too small to advertise, but unusual bargains.

(3) Because many lots sell quickly and missing one day's walk through may mean missing valuable opportunities.

These lots for Friday, ready at 8:30 A. M., are examples:

PASTOR'S WIFE FOUND GUILTY OF HAIRPULLING

Because the Rev. Thomas A. Whittaker, a retired Baptist clergyman, kept out of sight when his wife of thirty-one years called on Mrs. Ella Weeks to retrieve him from Mrs. Weeks' house at No. 302 Broadway, Everett, Mrs. Whittaker and Mrs. Weeks had a hair-pulling match which both described in Malden police court today. Because the Rev. Mr. Whittaker was again absent when the case was called, Judge Sweetser found Mrs. Whittaker guilty of assault and continued her case until March 8 for sentence.

Until last October the Rev. and Mrs. Whittaker lived with Mrs. Weeks. Then Mrs. Whittaker left. Her husband refused to go, too. After waiting patiently, but vainly, for him to join her, Mrs. Whittaker called upon Mrs. Weeks to deliver her missing spouse. Here let the two parties to the argument tell their own stories.

Mrs. Weeks testified:

On the afternoon of January 16, Mrs. Whittaker came to my house. She said to me, "Give me my husband." I told her he was not in the house. She forced her way in and began punching me. She pulled my hair and scratched me. The glass in the front door was broken.

I fell to the floor. Just at this time A. C. Lane, who lives in the next house, came in and separated us. Mrs. Whittaker left the house and I fainted.

Mrs. A. C. Lane, who passed Mrs. Whittaker as she was leaving the house testified that Mrs. Whittaker struck her with an umbrella, saying:

"I want my husband!"

When Mrs. Whittaker took the stand, she blamed Mrs. Weeks for the trouble. She said:

I called at Mrs. Weeks' house to

She said:

could not see him

She pushed me out and slammed the door. I returned. She knocked me down. We wrestled. She pulled my hair. I slapped her face and punched her, but she gave me just as good as I sent.

LYNN MATRON DENIES LASHING SICK CHILDREN

Mrs. Alice Chase, matron of the Lynn Contagious Hospital, today denied charges made before the Lynn City Council that children in the hospital had been whipped, that the matron had made a "puppet" of the superintendent, E. C. Beavins, and that she had "clandestinely removed hospital supplies" from the institution. Mrs. Chase said the accusations were unfounded and absolutely untrue.

"Me domineering over Superintendent Beavins? No, sir," said the matron today. "Why, sir, he is the boss and has always been."

Chairman Michael P. Ward of the Lynn Board of Health, who was accused with City Physician Joseph O'Shea of Lynn of "ignorance, carelessness and neglect" in handling an alleged case of smallpox, declared the charges were a "frameup on the part of certain politicians" who would like to see him ousted from office.

Mrs. Chase, the matron, was accused at the hearing of being harsh and overbearing to nurses and patients alike and of "forcing" a nurse to give her a body massage each day. In denying the charges against her today Mrs. Chase said:

I emphatically deny ever laying a hand upon a child and deny knowledge of anyone in this place ever punishing children. We do not have such brutes in the place, and could not afford to have them here. This is a hospital; we try to help little ones.

I am in perfect health; I do not need any massage; would not presume to ask one of my fellow employes to massage me, even if I wanted it.

The charge that I carry home, or convert to my own use, things from this place, is absolutely false. This is only a rehashing of a scandal trumped up for spite two years ago. We proved it to be false then.

Me, domineering over Superintendent Beavins? That makes me laugh. No, sir. Why, he is the boss and always has been.

Mrs. Lucy Newhall of Newton Highlands, a former employee at the hospital, who was quoted as saying that Superintendent Beavins was a "puppet in the hands of Mrs. Chase," today denied she had ever made any such statement.

She said:

I saw the article in one of the papers purporting to report that I said or complained that Mrs. Alice Chase was cruel to children. I never said such a thing. I never saw Mrs. Chase lay a hand on a child. I never heard of her compelling nurses to massage her every morning. I am one of the nurses; and if such a thing took place I would know.

This Man Paid the Woman the Million | This Woman Got $1,000,000 Alimony

Joseph V. Thompson. Mrs. Blanche A. Thompson.

Mrs. Blanche A. Thompson is today in possession of $1,000,000 given to her by her former husband, Josiah V. Thompson, coke producer of Uniontown, Pa., whose wealth is estimated at $50,000,000.

Immediately upon his receiving a divorce from his wife who before her marriage to Thompson in 1903 was the widow of Henry Hawes, a well-known turfman of Johnston, Pa., Thompson paid the money to her lawyers.

The Thompsons were married in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel New York. When Mr. Thompson took his bride to Uniontown he built her a house costing more than a million dollars. Mrs. Thompson is living at the Hotel Plaza, New York.

Suffragettes May Chain Men Critics Behind Chariots

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Riding triumphantly in six golden chariots, escorted by marching sisters and troops of "petticoat cavalry," the suffragette leaders of Baltimore will enter Washington to take part in the suffragette pageant March 3, according to an announcement today from national suffragist headquarters.

The chariots are to be drawn by milk-white prancing steeds and in flashing splendor they will lead into the capital the strenuous suffragists who will have walked or ridden from New York and Philadelphia and other northern cities.

"And in chains behind our chariots," said one of the leaders, "we may parade some of our unfair male critics." She declined to furnish the names of any she might have had in mind.

Find Woman Not Guilty of Breaking Into Ayer Garage

Mary Welsh, the first woman to be tried on a burglary charge in the East Cambridge courts, and who was accused of breaking and entering the garage of E. A. Proctor at Ayer last November, was found not guilty today by order of Judge Chase in the Middlesex Superior Court. Assistant District Attorney Brown declared the evidence insufficient and Judge Chase agreed with him.

Richard Gaskell, who was accused with the young woman, pleaded guilty. His case was placed on file. Gaskell is now serving a five to seven years' sentence at the Charlestown Prison for stealing.

Miss Welsh told the court that she was to have married Gaskell, whom she knew as "Dr. James Stillman." She said she was innocent of any of the crimes charged up to Gaskell.

300 KNICKERBOCKER HOTEL HANDS ARE ORDERED TO LEAVE

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Three hundred waiters and kitchen hands were discharged at the Knickerbocker Hotel early today. Pickets were placed about the hostelry, and it was announced at the headquarters of the International Hotel Workers' Union that an effort would be made to tie up every big hotel and restaurant in this city. Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, the woman organizer of the Industrial Workers of the World, who is helping conduct the waiters' strike, took command. "We will tie up the hotel and restaurant business, no matter how long it takes," she said.

HOLD PAINTE RFOR TAKING RINGS

Charles Becker, the Boston and Waltham painter, who had the novel experience last August of testifying at the inquest into his own death, was held in the Newton District Court today in $5,000 for a continued hearing next Saturday on the charge of larceny of a diamond ring from Mrs. Clarence Dale of No. 35 Bennington street, Newton.

Mrs. Dale testified that Becker came to her house for work, that she had none for him, and that later she missed a diamond ring that she had hung upon a kitchen nail while doing some housework. The ring has not been recovered, and Becker denies any knowledge of it.

SEAS IN HURRICANE BEND STEEL PLATES ON LINER DEVONIAN

Two passenger liners—the Leyland liner Devonian and the Allan steamship Pretorian—reached Boston today, each three days overdue, after encountering terrific weather in midocean. The Devonian brought 28 passengers and the Pretorian 22 cabin and 148 steerage.

In a hurricane January 15 and 16 the Devonian drifted helplessly and made less than two miles an hour. Big seas swept away a lifeboat, smashed in a door and flooded several cabins and did other damage. The steel plates, five-eights of an inch thick, on the promenade deck were bent and twisted.

Bostonians arriving on the Devonian were Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Brown, Dr. J. P. Farley, Miss E. R. Wood and Miss F. M. Snell. Dr. Farley said the voyage was his twenty-third across the Atlantic and the worst he ever made.

START WORK ON NEW HIBERNIAN BLOCK

Ground was broken today at Nos. 182-186 Dudley street, Roxbury, for the Hibernian building. It is expected that the structure will be completed next Fall. The new building will be of first-class construction. The basement will be fitted out with bowling alleys and billiard tables. The first floor will have two stores and three society halls. The second floor will comprise offices and lodge rooms. On the third floor will be a dance hall.

NEW PHONE BUILDING IN ROXBURY DISTRICT

Contracts have been signed by the New England Telephone Company for the building of a new two-story exchange for the Roxbury district, to be located on Waverly, near Warren street. It is to be completed by August 1, and will be ready for business early in 1914. The cost will be about $100,000.

COREY TELLS REAL STORY OF BIG STEEL DEAL

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—The most valuable testimony yet brought out to show a motive for the purchase of the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company by the United States Steel Corporation came today from the lips of William Ellis Corey, former president of the Steel corporation, when the hearing in the Federal anti-trust suit against the Steel Trust was resumed before Special Commissioner Brown.

Through a series of letters introduced by former Judge J. M. Dickinson, counsel for the government, and written by Mr. Corey to the manager of the Carnegie Steel works in Pittsburgh, a subsidiary of the steel corporation, it was brought out that Mr. Corey protested bitterly against the ability of the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company to manufacture open hearth rails, and the general practice of important railroads to purchase this brand instead of those made by the U. S. Steel Corporation.

Sold Cheaper Abroad.

"Is it not true, Mr. Corey, that following the formation of the Steel Corporation the price charged by your mills for steel rails for export trade was much cheaper than that listed for domestic trade?" asked Mr. Dickinson.

"Invariably," declared the former steel magnate.

In one of the letters written by Mr. Corey while he was president of the Steel Trust to the manager of the Carnegie works the writer said that, because of the inability of the Steel Corporation to mill this particular brand of rail and the tendency of the railroads to prefer it in place of that milled by his corporation, he feared that within a year the corporation would "be up against it."

This letter was written in 1905, two years before the absorption of the T. C. & I. Company by the Steel Corporation with the sanction of the then President Roosevelt. Another letter in 1906 complained because the Harriman system had given an order for open hearth rails to the Bethlehem Steel Company instead of to the trust. Corey, under questioning by Judge Dickinson, admitted the existence of an armor plate pool.

Denies Pool Exists Now.

"It was formed in 1902 or shortly after," said Corey. "The Carnegie and Bethlehem Steel companies were involved. They sold armor plate to Russia, Turkey and the United States governments. I do not know how long the pool existed, but I know it is not in existence now, nor was it in existence when I retired as president of the Steel Corporation in 1910."

YOUNG BRIDE ALONE; POLICE TAKE GROOM

Her honeymoon broken up by the police after she had been married but three weeks, Mrs. Charles Hibbitt, a twenty-two-year-old bride, waited alone in her new home at No. 67 Dartmouth street today for some tidings of her young husband, who was torn away from her yesterday and taken to Perth Amboy, N. J., to answer to an indictment charging robbery. She is being cared for by a physician.

Hibbitt, who is twenty-six, according to the police, sat in a poker game with two others in Perth Amboy last November. He is alleged to have joined one of the trio in attacking the winner and taking the money.

CIGARMAKERS AID GARMENT STRIKERS

The executive board of Boston Cigarmakers' Union today forwarded $100 to the striking garment workers of New York, and will recommend that an additional $500 be voted the strikers at the local union meeting tomorrow evening. If the strike at New York continues much longer it is said that the cigarmakers of this city will take up the question of contributing something to the strike fund every week until it is settled.

WOMAN MUSIC TEACHER GUILTY IN PERJURY CASE

Mrs. Julia I. Smith, a Beacon street music teacher, who has been on trial for perjury growing out of her testimony regarding her purchase of a piano, was found guilty in a sealed verdict reported today by the jury to Judge Brown in the Suffolk Superior Criminal Court. The jury reached its verdict after four hours of deliberation.

Mrs. Smith was in the courtroom. She was fashionably dressed. She did not show any emotion when the foreman of the jury pronounced her "guilty."

The teacher, who is well known in Boston and Reading musical circles, was held in $1,000 bonds, which were furnished. Her counsel, James P. Magenis, announced that he will file a bill of exceptions on Saturday.

Mrs. Smith's arrest and trial on the perjury charge was the outcome of a suit she brought against Deputy Sheriff Henry L. Walker of Middlesex County, eighteen months ago. She claimed that Walker had used undue force in replevining a piano she had bought. The government accused her of testifying at the trial of the suit that she had paid $400 for the piano when as a matter of fact she had paid but $135 for the instrument.

A warrant charging perjury was sworn out and the teacher was arrested. On the stand yesterday Mrs. Smith swore that she had paid $400 for the piano in installments of $100, $100 and $135, and that the remaining $65 was made up in lessons in music which she taught. Mrs. Smith said she had been married a second time five or six years after she believed her first husband had been drowned while on a fishing trip.

PAUL JONES' BODY TO BE MOVED AGAIN

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 23.—The body of John Paul Jones, America's first naval officer, will be removed next Sunday from its temporary resting place in Bancroft Hall, Naval Academy, to the crypt of the New Chapel. This is to be the great sea fighter's permanent resting place, it is hoped, and the chapel and the crypt were designed especially for this purpose. Arrangements for the services were completed today. They will be simple and dignified, the only speaker being Chaplain U. G. B. Pierce of the United States Senate.

BREAKS A COLD IN A FEW HOURS

First dose of Pape's Cold Compound relieves all Grippe misery—no Quinine.

After the very first dose of "Pape's Cold Compound" you distinctly feel the cold breaking and all the disagreeable Grippe symptoms leaving.

It is a positive fact that a dose of Pape's Cold Compound taken every two hours until three consecutive doses are taken will cure Grippe or break up the most severe cold, either in the head, chest, back, stomach or limbs.

It promptly ends the most miserable headache, dullness, head and nose stuffed up, feverishness, sneezing, sore throat, running of the nose, mucous catarrhal discharges, soreness, stiffness and rheumatic twinges.

Take this wonderful Compound with the knowledge that there is nothing else in the world which will cure your cold or end Grippe misery as promptly and without any other assistance or bad after-effects as a 25-cent package of Pape's Cold Compound, which any druggist can supply—it contains no quinine—be sure you get what you ask for—accept no substitute—belongs in every home. Tastes nice—acts gently.

CASCARETS TONIGHT! IF BILIOUS, CONSTIPATED, HEADACHY AND SICK

Turn the rascals out—the headache, biliousness, indigestion, constipation, the sick, sour stomach and foul gases—turn them out tonight with Cascarets.

Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never know the misery caused by a lazy liver, clogged bowels or an upset stomach.

Don't put in another day of distress—wake up refreshed and feel fine. Let Cascarets cleanse and sweeten your stomach; remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and that misery-making gas; take the excess bile from your liver and carry off the decomposed waste matter and constipation poison from the bowels. Then you will feel great.

A Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box keeps your head clear, stomach sweet, liver and bowels regular and you feel cheerful and bully for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

MAIL SERVICE ON MAINE ROAD NORMAL AGAIN

Assistant Superintendent Sheppardson of the New England railway mail service today stated that mail carrying conditions on the Bangor & Aroostook Railroad have become normal, after having been handicapped since last Saturday as a result of the strike of the road's engineers and firemen.

The State Board of Arbitration and Conciliation today began an investigation designed to end the strike. The members held their first session in this city.

ANGELA MORGAN GIVES TINY GARMENT WORKER'S STORY OF ENDLESS TOIL

By ANGELA MORGAN.

ANGELA MORGAN

Here is the story of Sarah Levine, a mere child in appearance, who says she is seventeen years old. Sarah is one of the 12,000 women garment workers toiling nine hours a day in Boston sweat shops.

She is a draper of ladies' dresses, and her task is to pin the folds of the garment in place on the form before it is basted or stitched. This means that Sarah must be on her feet practically all day long.

This child—for I am convinced she can be little more than fifteen—works during the entire day to help support her family, and studies at night to educate herself.

She can drape 110 dresses a day. She has done it often, so she told me.

Sarah is pretty, happy-eyed and sparkling. She is so very young and so full of hope and good will and faith in all the world that she hasn't much thought of the future and what that future may bring.

How long will she keep her dimples and her rounded cheeks and happy eyes if she must go on working as she is working now, in a crowded shop, with dingy windows and trashy floors and little means of ventilation? She works by gas light, for the shop is usually so dark that gas must be used.

Sarah is one of a family of nine children. Her father is a blacksmith, and his wages will not support all of them, so some of those children must do their share. Since she was fifteen Sarah has put her shoulder to the wheel.

She earns an average wage of $3.50 a week. All of this she turns over to the family, for she is only too glad to be a factor in their support.

What do you think of this, you carefree high school girls who think you have done a great deal when you have accepted the education your fathers and mothers give you? When you manage to pass the examinations you think you've worked as hard as a girl should work, don't you?

How would you like to work all day to help support your family, and study at night to get an education? And how would you like it if the wage you earned was so small that you couldn't even have pin money for yourself, but had to turn it all over to help pay rent and grocer's bills and coal bills and all the rest?

Amazingly Cheerful.

Sarah and her sister workers do it all with amazing cheerfulness. That is the beautiful thing about these girl garment workers. They are so eager to help their families, so thrilled with the desire to better the conditions for their loved ones that they count no sacrifice too great if only the end can be attained.

Here is this slip of a girl, this scarcely more than child, toiling all day to earn $3.50 a week, because in her young brain there flames the determination to see her sisters and brothers provided with the necessities of life.

Even though it means that she must deprive herself of sunlight and fresh air and play and freedom; even though it means she must work always under gaslight, in the day time when she is at the shop, and at night when she studies at school, she cheerfully offers herself and her youth upon the altar of the family need.

That is what her young life represents—sacrifice. Youth, health, strength, beauty—everything is given freely, with no thought of anything but the family good.

Here is Sarah's story of what life means to her, what her tasks are at the shop, what the daytime and the nighttime represent of work and effort:

Sarah's Own Story.

I am a draper of ladies' garments. This means that I stand and drape the dress on the form, pinning it in place. I do not stitch at all—I put in the pins just where they should go. The dresses I work on are mostly cotton or cotton voile, some of them for the house. I don't think any of them would be called street dresses. Many are of plain serge.

The place where I work is very large; there are about eighty people working in the room with me. Machine operators and pressers and finishers are all employed in the same room. There is another room next to ours where only children's dresses are made.

The windows are very dingy, and we must have gaslight. Of course, this place is full of trash, and it is swept while we are working there. We breathe in the dust. You ask me about the garbage pails, which are in so many shops. These pails become filled with the remains of the lunches that are eaten—that is what is meant by garbage. Everybody empties the refuse from the lunch in these cans, and they stand in the room. No, there are not any pails in the room where I work, but right next to mine, in the room where the children's dresses are made, there are three garbage pails. Are they covered? Oh, no. Nobody thinks of covering them. The Board of Health? I'm sure I don't know about them. I've never seen them at all.

I am so glad to help the family I don't think about the work. Besides, I am young and strong. I have to stand on my feet most of the time. I get up in the morning about 6:30, for I live in East Boston, and it takes some time to get to my work. I have breakfast, and then I ride to the shop. Sometimes after my day's work is over I walk all the way home. It takes an hour and a quarter, but I like to have the fresh air after being in the shop all day.

I carry my lunch with me. Sometimes I have herring and bread and butter. Then I have other salt fish—salmon and such. We have three-quarters of an hour for lunch. Then we stop work at a quarter of 6.

When I do my best work I turn out 110 dresses a day—I mean I drape that many. Then sometimes I do not have to drape more than thirty-five. It depends on what they have to do.

I have worked since I was fifteen years old. I am seventeen now. I know people don't believe it—I look like a child, they say.

After my day's work I go to night school, and stay up studying my lessons. I want to get ahead with them, so I will not let myself get tired. It's the only way to get my schooling, and I've got to make the best of it.

The smaller children of the family are in school. We pay $15 a month rent, so you see with that to pay and food and coal and everything else to buy, I have to turn in all I earn. But I'm not complaining about that. I am only too glad to be able to help, and I don't begrudge the labor.

The story of Jeska Gordon, which was printed on Monday, has roused widespread interest, and letters have been coming into the AMERICAN office with offers of work and with words of sympathy and good cheer. One writer, from Athol, Mass., offers a good job at $4 a week, and a warm room. A woman in Newton asks if Jeska would consider domestic work in a considerate family, and offers to send clothes.

A Brockton woman, wife of a physician, also offers clothing and expresses herself emphatically about the Boston Board of Health, which would permit girls to work in shops where garbage pails stand uncovered.

One writer sent enclosed in her letter a crisp $5 note, and asked me to give it to Jeska. I turned it over at once to the head of the Cloak and Garment Workers' Union, it might reach her without delay. One of the letters came by special delivery, showing the eagerness of the reader to help Jeska at the earliest possible moment.

SCIENTISTS TEST TUBERCULOSIS CURE

BERLIN, Jan. 23.—A new turn will be given to the heated controversy in the medical world as to the merits of a live non-virulent baccillus as a remedial agent for tuberculosis when Dr. Friedrich Franz Friedmann, according to his announced intention, submits his culture today to the imperial health authorities.

WON'T ASK POLICE TO HEAR WOMEN

Police Commissioner O'Meara refuses to notify the members of the Boston police force that they have been invited to attend the Tremont Temple meeting of the Political Equality Union Saturday night, in a body.

BAN ALL SPOONING AT THE NAVY YARD

Spooning is now barred at the Charlestown Navy Yard. Captain D. W. Coffman, the commandant, issued the order as a result of complaints about the conduct of some visitors.

'YES, I THREW CUP,' DIVORCEE SAYS IN COURT

Declaring that her divorced husband, Raymond J. Hudson, was afflicted with "that tired feeling," and charging that he had knocked her down in the street with their baby in her arms, Mrs. Maude E. Hudson testified in the divorce court today for the defence in Hudson's attempt to get possession of his ten-year-old daughter Lucy, who is being cared for by relatives.

Mrs. Hudson said that she had been employed in a jewelry concern in Providence, and that she was married to Hudson in 1902.

"We quarreled," she testified, "on account of his people doing too much for him. I wanted him to do things for himself. But that was impossible. He would come home drunk and found fault with everything.

"Had That Tired Feeling."

"He had that tired feeling. He required from two to four days' rest every week. He got it, too. His aunt would bring groceries into the house. She would bring clothes for me and for the baby.

"Why, he never gave me more than thirty-five or forty cents at a time in my life. The idea that I did not take care of my child! I always took care of her.

"Once we went out shopping and I carried Lucy in my arms. He got angry and knocked me down with the child in my arms. He grabbed her and ran. I chased him. He took the child to his aunt, Mrs. Norton. I tried to get the child back, but they would not give her to me.

"I did not know anything about the divorce suit he brought against me until the suit was begun. Many times he threatened to commit suicide. He threatened to take poison and to cut his throat."

"Did you ever throw a cup at him, as he charges?" the woman was asked.

"Yes," she replied. "I threw a cup at him, but I didn't hit him."

Wife No. 2 was in court and was an interested listener to the testimony of Wife No. 1.

Mrs. Miner's Story.

Mrs. Miner told her story. She said:

"Hudson lived with me from the time he was fourteen until he married. At that time he had just $40, which I had saved for him.

"As a boy he got into all kinds of trouble. The police were always after him. When I first got him I lived in New York city, and my sister—Mrs. Hudson, his mother—lived with me. I sent him to school and made him go as long as I could. Then he wanted to go to work. I let him go. He loafed more than he worked. He had trouble in nearly every place he worked.

"On one occasion I took him from Providence to New York on account of trouble he had had with the police so as to keep him out of the State. He would always write to come back and always came back.

"He was arrested a great many times when a boy, and I had to pay his fines.

"Before he separated from his wife there was a world of trouble between him and his wife. I don't know much from my own observation—only what he told me."

GIRLS WANT HARVARD MAN TO WRITE 'EM

E. Paul Whitcomb, the Harvard student who lost a $50 bill in the Cambridge subway tunnel when a draft of wind whisked it out through the train window, has become the recipient of letters from several women writers "with a view to further correspondence," or asking Whitcomb to make loans of from $25 to $500 for the benefit of various enterprises that promise fortunes to the proposers of the loan. Whitcomb has on hand a large batch of letters from appealing strangers. He is the son of a wealthy fruit grower of Los Angeles.

Dorchester's Auto Patrol Terror of "Speed Maniacs"

If you live in Dorchester you can now be arrested at the rate of fifty miles an hour, going and coming.

It's the new auto patrol wagon, just in commission, that makes this possible and replaces the former two-horse "hurry up" wagon at Dorchester police station.

The improvement association has been demanding this vehicle for a long time. Not that its members expect to get arrested, but they figure that, if arrests must be made, it is better to have them a la automobile.

Captain George A. Hall of Dorchester station, who hated to see the wagon horses exhausted from long runs to Mattapan and Neponset, is happy. William C. Murdock and Everett W. Chandler, former wagon drivers, but now auto patrol chauffeurs, are glad, too. It's much more classy to speed the new patrol out than slapping the reins over the horses.

Patrolman James E. Halligan brought in the first arrest in the new one. He had to ring in box 13 to get the patrol, but it's not regarded as a hoodoo.

500 AT ANNUAL DANCE OF E. E. GRAY EMPLOYES

More than 500 attended the eighth annual dance of the E. E. Gray Company Employes' Mutual Benefit Association at Paul Revere Hall. The Salem Cadet Band gave a concert.

The head of the corporation, E. E. Gray of Allston, was present with Mrs. Gray and their daughter, Miss Edith Gray. Vice-President and Mrs. F. S. Douglass of Allston and Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Crapser of Brookline also attended.

The committee in charge was Albert M. Sakman, chairman; Alfred A. White, Harold S. Crawford, Miss Mary S. Lloyd, Miss Lena M. Macdonald.

WEINGARTNER IS ON HIS WAY TO BOSTON

PARIS, Jan. 23.—Felix Weingartner, the musical director, sailed today from Cherbourg on the Kronprinzessin Cecelie for New York. He will go to Boston, where he looks forward to a successful season of opera. Mr. Weingartner said:

I am going to Boston to direct the orchestra of the Boston Opera Company. I am very fond of America. I shall be there a month, but would like to remain longer. I expect a very successful season of opera in Boston.

Shampooing this Way is Genuine Pleasure

"The time has passed when women give over half a day to a mussy, unsatisfactory shampoo," writes Mrs. Mae Martyn, authority on beauty, "and now instead of going to the hair-dresser, she performs this toilet function in her own home, taking but a few minutes and obtaining far more satisfactory results.

"A teaspoonful of canthrox dissolved in a cup of hot water makes sufficient mixture for a delightfully soothing and cleansing shampoo. This makes a rich, white lather that dissolves all dust and dandruff, neutralizes excess oil and cleanses every strand of hair. Rinsing leaves hair and scalp immaculately clean and promotes a healthy condition in both. With canthrox shampoos a luxuriant growth of glossy hair, richly beautiful in its natural tint, is certain to be the legacy of every woman." —Advertisement.

COUNSEL CLASH OVER WOMAN AT RUSSELL TRIAL

Attorney William R. Scharton, counsel for Dakota Dan in the Russell will trial in the East Cambridge Court, at the hearing today declared that if his client is a "perjurer," he should be punished. The lawyer made the statement after Mrs. Mary Rusaw of Brashier, N. Y., a witness for the estate, left the stand. Scharton asked that the woman be held under bonds to keep her within jurisdiction of the court.

Attorney Nason for the estate opposed Scharton's request, saying Mrs. Rusaw would be held merely at the 'caprice of counsel" and that he believed the real purpose of the request was to "intimidate other witnesses to come from outside the State."

Nason intimated that he would carry his fight to the Supreme Court to "seek relief from contempt proceedings." Master Pevey made no ruling. Later Dakota Dan's lawyer had Mrs. Rusaw summoned to appear as witness in the case next Monday.

BALL IN CAPITOL PLAN PROPOSED BY SENATOR MARTINE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Senator Martine of New Jersey, after a long conference with Senator Gore, announced that he would offer a resolution today which will provide for a ball and reception to be held in honor of President Wilson in the Capitol building.

This plan was the outgrowth of the refusal of the joint committee of the two houses, of which Senator Crane is chairman, to provide for any sort of festivities after Governor Wilson vetoed the plan to hold the usual inaugural ball in the Pension Building.

MISS LEONARD SEEKS ASYLUM RELEASE

Miss Amelia Leonard, the comely trained nurse who pleaded guilty to larceny from Boston patients, was sent to Worcester Insane Hospital, and who escaped from there September 28, last, is now seeking her release from the Manhattan State Hospital in New York city upon a writ of habeas corpus. She will come before Justice Greenbaum of the New York Supreme Court for an adjourned hearing next Monday.

'KID CARTER' TRIAL IS SET FOR MARCH

District Attorney Pelletier announced today that the murder trial of James B. Jennings, alias "Kid Carter," will begin the second week in March.

"Carter" is now in Charles street jail, where he is held without bail. He has pleaded not guilty to the murder charge. The State says he shot and killed William H. McPherson in a South End saloon on New Year's Day.

The trial might not be deferred to March but Medical Examiner Leary, who is a material State witness, is compelled to take a rest. He is going to Panama to recuperate. He will be back by March.

YEARS OF HEALTH IN EACH BOTTLE OF NEW TONIC

A. Martinez, who lives at 29 Hanson st., Boston, is such an ardent advocate of Tona Vita that he wants everyone to know about it, and asked one of the Tona Vita experts to publish the following statement:

"I had felt weak and run down for years, but could never get anything to relieve me and help my appetite. I grew nervous and despondent and thought that health had deserted me forever. One day I read some clippings from the Boston papers about the new tonic, Tona Vita. I tried it and got immediate results. After taking a bottle I feel better than I have felt for many years. I unhesitatingly recommend Tona Vita to all people who suffer from that 'run-down' feeling. It is a splendid tonic."

"Some people, when they feel 'run-down' do not imagine that there is anything seriously wrong with them," stated the Tona Vita expert, "but it is really a serious warning. It means that the brain is beginning to lose mastery over the body. Other conditions of nervous debility than those mentioned by Mr. Martinez are extreme fits of lassitude, sleep that will not refresh, chronic headaches, loss of appetite, memory and will-power impaired; and many other symptoms. Tona Vita can relieve nervous debility, no matter how far it has taken hold of the patient, but people will save themselves quite a lot of pain if they take this tonic directly the symptoms appear.

"Tona Vita can be obtained at any of the principal drug stores in Boston."

GIRLS OF NEW ENGLAND DISCUSS PROBLEM OF LIVING ON $8 A WEEK

Hundreds of letters have been received by the AMERICAN from girls and women all over New England in which they give their views on whether or not a girl can live on $8 a week. Some think $8 is plenty for a girl to live on, while others take the opposite stand and claim that no girl or woman can really live on that amount. Some of the letters follow:

Suggests Club of Girls.

Editor AMERICAN:

I have been greatly interested in how a girl can live on $8 a week. I was working as a bookkeeper and cashier some time for $7 a week. Now, if a girl wasn't well, and made a mistake of twenty-five cents, whether she could rectify it or not, it would be taken from her pay. She also lost $1 if her mistake was over twenty-five cents.

As I live with my parents, it was not so bad, but I had to pay my board. I could not get along with a luncheon from home and I could not reach my home in an hour for dinner. I gave my mother $4 for room and two meals a day. Carfares were sixty cents, outside dinners were $1.50, which left only ninety cents for pocket money or savings.

I think the idea for a body of girls to room in a lodging house was a good plan. I think, however, a band of twenty girls might obtain a furnished lodging house by paying $5 each, thus making two payments on house and obtaining food for each week. They could pay a woman $5 a week to act as housekeeper and $4 later for a maid. The proceeds could be put into use by buying a sewing machine or any other comfort. This club of girls could enjoy all the comforts of home. They might put some money into the bank for future luxuries.

Editor AMERICAN:

A girl friend and myself rented a "flat" for $16 per month. To furnish the rooms we bought furniture, bedding, etc. (inexpensive), amounting to $50, on the instalment plan, paying $1 a week.

We got our own breakfast and dinner (at night) also made up our own lunch of sandwiches, pie, cake, etc., and did all the baking.

We sent the washing out and did our own ironing.

By renting a room at $7 per month our own rent was reduced to $9 a month. In a year's time the furniture was all paid for, which left us fifty cents more per week to add to our bank account or to the little "flat." We were fortunate in having a permanent roomer.

Our expenses per week were:

Rent	$1.13
Payment on furniture	.50
Meals (home cooked)	2.00
Gas	.30
Laundry	.15
Fund for coal for next Winter	.30
Bank	.20
Total	$4.58

This left a balance of $3.42 for the clothing, amusement, etc., and in the first year my bank account was $10.40. I might mention, we did all our own sewing and dressed inexpensively though neatly. D. SINCLAIR.

Providence.

Keeps a Bank Account.

Editor AMERICAN:

A girl can exist on $8 a week. I am a factory girl earning from $9 to $13 on piecework, and going through my memorandum I find that for the year 1912 I have received $474.13 for wages. Out of that I have paid for fifty weeks:

Board to mother ($5.50 per week)	$275.00
Carfares	30.00
Newspaper	3.00
Two suits	40.00
For fixing teeth	12.00
Three Summer dresses	10.00
For church for Sunday and annual collection	25.00
Vacation	25.00
Put in bank	10.00
Total	$420.00

That leaves me $54.13 for the year for hats, shoes, stockings, underwear, gloves, neckwear, handkerchiefs, shirtwaists, tooth brushes, tooth powder, hairpins, collar pins, shoe shines, glove cleansing, a college ice now and then, a trip to Revere Beach once in a while in the Summer, Christmas presents and a visit to the "movies."

Every-day Dyspepsia

S. B. HARTMAN, M. D., Columbus, Ohio

In my article last Sunday I made the statement that there are a great many cases of catarrh of the stomach that are not recognized as such. I want to emphasize that statement. Nearly every case of so-called dyspepsia is in reality catarrh of the stomach. A great many cases of so-called rheumatism are catarrh of the stomach. A great many cases of constipation are caused by catarrh of the stomach. A great many cases that come under the general term of biliousness are catarrh of the stomach.

Thousands of Testimonials.

As stated in my article last Sunday, there is no class of cases that write me more frequently or more enthusiastically as to the benefits received from Pe-ru-na than this very class. I feel safe in saying that a greater number of people have recovered from catarrh of the stomach by taking Pe-ru-na than any other remedy in the world. This may be partly due to the fact that more people know about Pe-ru-na than any other remedy, but it is certainly also due to the fact that Pe-ru-na is an excellent remedy for such cases.

Write to Dr. Hartman.

Wherever it seems to fail a letter calling my attention to the matter is generally sufficient for me to be able to set it right. Even though Pe-ru-na be taken, the patient may be imprudent in his diet or habits and thus defeat the remedy. But under ordinary, reasonable circumstances Pe-ru-na may confidently be expected to render exactly the assistance that Nature needs in these cases.

Pe-ru-na, Man-a-lin and La-cu-pia, manufactured by the Pe-ru-na Company, Columbus, Ohio. Sold at all drug stores. No. 40.

Society Wears New Bloomer Bathing Suit at Palm Beach

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 23.—This season has developed a new style of bathing suit for women. The new suit is called the bloomer suit. It differs from the old style in that the skirt stops about eight inches above the knee.

This kilt, instead of being worn with tights as was the old skirt, covers bloomers which bulge heavily at the knee where stockings begin.

It is the intention of the designers, it is said, to have the bloomers worn in colors contrasting sharply with the rest of the garment, thus producing a pretty effect. It is argued, too, that it gives greater freedom of action for swimming.

Mrs. A. Drexel Biddle of Philadelphia, Mrs. Hobart C. Chatfield Taylor of New York, Mrs. Vincent B. Hulbell of Englewood and her sister, Miss Lillian B. Hyde, the Metropolitan golf champion, wore such suits on the beach. Miss Hyde's was particularly becoming, a fact which the photographers soon discovered. She fled, protesting vigorously when she faced a battery of cameras, the picture men following and snapping as they ran.

ACT DEFINES WILSON'S IDEA OF A TRUST

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 23.—If any one wishes to know Gov. Wilson's definition of a trust, here it is. It is contained in the language of the first of the bills drawn up by his direction and introduced in the State Senate on Monday night. Such a trust as the kind he defines he would punish by the revocation of its charter. Its directors he would punish by fine and imprisonment.

A trust is a combination or agreement between corporations, firms or persons, any two or more of them, for the following purposes, and such trust is hereby declared to be illegal and indictable:

1. To create or carry out restrictions in trade or to acquire a monopoly, either in intra-State or inter-State business or commerce.

2. To limit or reduce the production or increase the price of merchandise or of any commodity.

3. To prevent competition in manufacturing, making, transporting, selling, and purchasing of merchandise, produce, or any commodity.

4. To fix at any standard or figure whereby its price to the public or consumer shall in any manner be controlled, any article or commodity of merchandise, products or commerce intended for sale, use or consumption in this State or elsewhere.

5. To make any agreement by which they directly or indirectly preclude a free and unrestricted competition among themselves, or any purchasers or consumers, in the sale or transportation of any article or commodity, either by pooling, withholding from the market, or selling at a fixed price, or in any other manner by which the price might be affected.

6. To make any secret oral agreement or arrive at any understanding without express agreement, by which they directly or indirectly preclude to a free and unrestricted competition among themselves, or any purchasers or consumers, in the sale or transportation of any article or commodity, either by pooling, withholding from the market, or selling at a fixed price, or in any other manner by which the price might be affected.

This is the Wilson definition of a trust. By the Wilson bills any person acting as a director of a trust as a trust is thus defined is to be adjudged guilty of a misdemeanor.

SENATORSHIP INVESTIGATION PROVES FIZZLE

The legislative investigation in connection with the recent election of a United States Senator is back where it started. The House Committee on Rules finds nothing to investigate, but the committee is ready to start an investigation if it gets any evidence.

Meanwhile a cruel thing has been said by Representative Murphy of South Boston.

Representative Meaney, one of the Democratic leaders in the House, asked Mr. Murphy if anything in that article in the Republic, Mayor Fitzgerald's weekly paper, which is alleged to have reflected on some of the Democratic members, had hurt Murphy in his district.

To which Mr. Murphy replied cheerfully that he thought it had helped him, if anything.

Mr. Murphy couldn't see where the article had hurt any Democrat.

This is directly opposite from the opinion of Representative Gordon of Ward 9, who introduced the order for investigation. Mr. Gordon declared the Mayor's paper had reflected on the integrity of some Democratic legislators.

Fudge..........A Waif
Frank Wentworth..........The Hero
Dick Gerson..........His Chum
Dionysius Matherson..........A Rich Man
Mrs. Matherson..........Society Leader
Ruth Ferrars..........Frank's Sweetheart
General Brittlebank..........War Hero
Mrs. Brittlebank..........His Wife

What Has Gone Before:

Gommery Bale, just out of prison, where he has served a term for stealing a lady's purse, greets his wife, Hannah, with a blow. He tells her he wants to get in touch with their boarder, Frank Wentworth, who is the missing heir to a fortune. After taking the woman's last pennies he slouches into a saloon. Mrs. Bale is about to strike Fudge, a waif, whom she makes sell flowers on the streets, when Wentworth intervenes. Since leaving college Frank has had no work and is now poverty-stricken. He and Fudge console each other on their hard lot in life.

Dionysius Matherson is arguing with his wife, who sarcastically hints that she would like to leave him. They talk of Frank Wentworth and how happy he will be with his ward, Ruth Ferrars, his sweetheart. General Brittlebank and his wife, Hilda, arrive for a call. On hearing of Frank, Hilda murmurs, "Richardson was his friend. He will know me. He will tell all." While the Mathersons and the Brittlebanks are chatting, happy in their comparative affluence, Frank is in miserable poverty in his wretched room and talks with Fudge.

Now Go On with the Story

PART I.

"NO worse than Hannah Bale," she replied, "although I hate him most. Oh, he's a bad one. If you only knew how bad he was. His pals got several years each for making bad coin."

"His pals, eh? And he escaped?"

It was the first time that Frank knew in what bad quarters he was living. He had suspected much, but had never thought that Gommery Bale was more than an ordinary thief.

"He was too cute for them," replied Fudge. "They made them in the cellar under the kitchen floor. I know it well, though he don't think I do."

Fudge's description of the counterfeiters was interrupted by the entrance of Mrs. Bale.

"So it's here I find you, is it? And me waiting for you to go on an errand. Git down those stairs. Nice goings on, a-gossiping here on the third floor."

Frank held up his hand to restrain Mrs. Bale's torrent of wrath.

"She is kind and gentle," he said, "and deserves a better fate. Tell me if you can whose child she is and how you came by her."

"Very well," replied Mrs. Bale, "since you take such an interest in her. It was one cold January morning when a young and pretty woman fainted at our door. Had she been old and ugly she would have stopped there, but being well dressed and the sight of dollars in her purse, he brought her in. Well, she didn't leave our place alive."

"You don't mean"——asked Frank, in a horrified tone.

"No—Gommery is bad enough for that, when he has got them bad—but she died. Fudge was her child. 'Take this ring,' she said, and we did, 'and these letters to a gentleman in Westchester. He is the father of my child and will reward you for your kindness.' Then we got her purse with almost $200 in it, but being in drink Gommery forgot the name of the gent, and from that day to this we have never found him."

Letters Tell Nothing

"Don't the letters give any information?" queried Frank.

"No, they were all addressed to his 'loving wife' and signed her loving husband."

"The old story, I suppose," suggested Frank.

"Oh, no—she was married right enough. Her wedding ring was on her, but she is in heaven now, and Gommery has the letters in a box under his bed, but see how she is stretching her neck to listen to it all," said Mrs. Bale, nodding toward Fudge.

Frank had a violent spell of coughing before he could ask Mrs. Bale where Fudge's mother was burried.

"On the Island, in a pauper's grave." Noticing his cough, she continued, "and she ain't the only one that seems likely to go that way, but come along, Fudge, and help me lay out Gommery's supper."

Mrs. Bale moved to the door with Fudge at her heels.

The child turned to Frank and said: "Thank you, sir, for asking about my mother. I should like to see that grave where she is buried; it's the first I have ever heard of her, and she's gone to heaven, Mrs. Bale says. I wonder if I shall ever go to heaven."

"I hope so, Fudge," replied Frank.

"As mother is there, I'd like to go. Mothers are kinder to their children than folks as ain't their mothers. Say, mister, will Hanna Bale go to heaven?

Frank had picked up the poker to stir the fire. At this question he paused and looked at Fudge with a smile.

"Well" he replied, "I don't exactly wish her any harm, but"——Then he stirred the fire vigorously.

"'Spects not, eh? nor Gommery either? Ah, that's comforting, for they aint angels."

Dick Returns

Fudge paused to listen. She had heard a step on the stair.

"Footsteps!" she cried. "If he should find me here!" The girl looked about the room for a place to hide. "No, it's Dick," Frank assured her. "I know his step."

"Ah! Dick, your face is welcome home, even in this wretched den, where the sunshine never streams."

"Good night, mister," said Fudge leaving the room.

"Good night, Fudge," he replied.

Gerson loooked thoughtfully at his friend. "Mrs. Bale," he said, "told me you were worse, and that you sent for the doctor. Have you seen him?"

"No, but I am very low."

"You had better lie down for awhile and I will try and work this fire into a blaze."

"Any luck, Dick?" Frank looked at his friend hopefully.

"Not a stroke," he replied with disgust. "I haven't eaten anything. Time was when I gave away in charity what would have kept the flesh on my bones today."

Gerson walked over and looked at the lid of the trunk. One by one he took out the few garments it contained.

"Nothing here they'd lend a cent on. Dress suit seen better days. Well made silk lined. I'll try that again; and here's a silk scarf. That's yours. No matter"——

Frank looked up wearily. Then he became interested. "A scarf," he said. "Stop Dick—isn't it embroidered on the corner with my initial?"

"F. W. Yes. A woman's handiwork."

"Then don't take that. Give it to me, please. It's the one memento left to me of her. When I think of that past, Dick, I feel that I can rise again, afraid of nothing, strong enough for anything."

"What's the romance of the scarf?" asked Gerson. "Will it make a story that will sell, for hang me if the editors will look at one of these."

Waves Rejected Manuscripts

Gerson waved a bunch of rejected manuscript in the air. He was still keen for a story, however, and would have turned his own misfortune into copy if the editors had not been offered the same subject before.

"It was in our college days," said Frank, with a sigh, "that Ruth and I first met."

"Ruth? Yes, I remember."

"She came into my life like a dream."

[illegible]," sneered Gerson.

"And I grew to love her," continued [illegible] the freshness of a boy's first fancy [illegible] had crept into my life like a small and narrow stream, which widened as it flowed into a grand religion. You chaffed me then and have forgotten now. I struggled with the world to win success, and vainly. Ah, that was the greatest blow of all, to lose the girl I had sworn to love."

"My dear Frank," replied Gerson, shrugging his shoulders, "you should have never sworn anything of the sort. It's a bad habit, for it makes you feel ridiculous when the girl you swear to love today is replaced by another tomorrow. Constancy at your age was absurd. Oh, Love—Pshaw, I know all about it."

"Indeed," said Frank with a smile. "And yet you were on the point yourself of marrying Hilda Rose."

"Marrying Hilda Rose? No such nonsense, Frank. Hilda was a flirt, beloved of all boys, and I took my share of her smiles and paid her back, as the other fellows did, with trashy words."

"Your trashy words, trashy words," said Frank, seriously, "may have meant a hope that was life or death to her."

"Hilda was very different from your Ruth. She was a woman with eyes that came from heaven, yet worked the mischief of the other place."

Frank's Love Sincere

Frank dreamed of his happiness of long ago. To him love was sincere. He was a man who could love but once. To win a woman would mean a lifetime of happiness. To lose her, a life of hopelessness. He did not look upon his love affair as Gerson did.

"Then you regard love as a plaything, to be taken up in idleness and idly cast aside as toys and playthings are?"

"Oh, your're in love, and what's the use of talking to a fellow in love? He's got no conscience. But you went to sleep and I'm disturbing you. By the way, have you given up all hope of that advertisement Bale showed you?"

"I have, for had they wanted me they would have found me long ago, without a friend in the world."

"But me," replied Gerson, walking over to his friend's side. "For when you found that I was poorer than yourself you bade me stay and share your home with you. Do you think that I can forget that, Frank?"

Gerson patted his friend affectionately on the shoulder. Frank smiled wanly and said: "I can hear you plainly, though my sight seems wrong. If I could but rest for a little while!"

Gerson lifted Frank in his arms and carried him over to the bed, telling him that he would leave the room for a while and let him sleep.

"No—don't go," said Frank. "I shan't be able to see you presently. I feel sometimes the end is near, and I wish that I could leave you happy. Hold my hand, Dick—so. God bless you."

Frank sank wearily back on the bed. Gerson looked at him compassionately.

Memories of Better Days

"He is worse, much worse," he said to himself. "What are we to do, without a friend in all the world, without a crust in the place? He is asleep. What a peaceful look on his face. The same face that I knew at college. Altered not a bit—he must have seen a greater change in me, wrought by the downward path I have trodden since those happy boyhood days. A life of reckless poverty, a career of sin and shame, carrying with it the usual sequel, misery and starvation."

His meditations were interrupted by the entrance of Mrs. Bale.

"Didn't you hear me knock down-stairs?" she growled. A dragging me up here with this letter, which has been lying beneath the door since morning."

"A letter?" asked Gerson eagerly.

"Yes, for Mr. Wentworth. I saw it in the candlestick last night. Is he"——

"Yes, he is," replied Gerson, plainly annoyed.

"Put it down."

"And when are you going to fork over, eh, Mr. Wretched Gerson, Esq.?"

"Richard, not wretched," corrected Gerson.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

"Then don't take that. Give it to me, please. It's the one memento left me of her."

Do You Know That—

An umbrella made thief-proof by being locked in such a manner that it cannot be opened has been invented by a London cloak-room attendant. The locking device consists of a metal collar, one end of which may be slipped down over the rib-tips, and is securely locked to them by revolving the three metal rings. These rings bear the letters and numerals of the secret combination.

WANT CITIES TO BE MERCHANTS AND SELL FOOD

The legislative Committee on Constitutional Amendments will give its first hearing tomorrow morning on the bill of Representative B. F. Sullivan of East Boston for a constitutional amendment so that the Legislature may permit cities and towns to sell the necessaries of life.

Representative Sullivan, Attorney Frank A. Goodwin and others interested in this bill are urging a larger attendance at the hearing.

The point is made that the way to bring down the high cost of living, curb local or national combinations, and force down inflated prices for coal and such necessaries, is for the city or town to do merchandising, if desirable.

The public market question, which has been agitated in many cities, is involved in this proposed amendment.

GOVERNORS TO TALK RAILWAYS AT HOTEL

Because the State House elevator is a union "lift" and refuses to work after noon on Saturdays, the conference of New England Governors scheduled for next Saturday afternoon will be held at the Hotel Touraine instead of at the State House.

Governor Foss will entertain his fellow executives at luncheon at the Touraine Saturday noon and the conference will begin shortly after 2 o'clock.

Governor Foss will urge the Governors to recommend to their respective Legislatures that they pass a uniform law regulating the railroads in all New England.

"BATTLING" NELSON WEDS DENVER GIRL

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—Oscar Matthew Battling Nelson, for fourteen years in the prize ring without being knocked down, took the count from Dan Cupid. Today he was wedded in his home in Hegewisch to Miss Fay King, a Denver newspaper artist. A brass band of twenty-five pieces serenaded the villagers during the nuptials.

MRS. SHEPARD PLANS TO ENTER SOCIAL WHIRL

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Jan. 23.—Congratulations and well wishes continued to flow into Tarrytown today for Finley Johnson Shepard and his bride, who before noon yesterday was Helen Miller Gould. It was estimated today that more than 1,000 messages had reached the Lyndhurst Summer home of the newly wedded Shepards.

Mr. and Mrs. Shepard spent much of their time today looking over their handsome presents, reading the messages that had been sent to them and replying to those that had not already been answered.

The happy bride and bridegroom probably discussed their future plans to some extent today. It is their purpose to remain here for a short time and then take a honeymoon trip to Europe. They will, of course, spend some time as the guests of her sister Anna, the Duchess of Talleyrand, who, with the Duke and their four-year-old son, Prince de Sagan, came over for the wedding.

Before the guests departed from Tarrytown it is said that Mrs. Shepard let them know that later when they were settled in their Fifth avenue home that she would be pleased to see them all, from which they argued that it is the purpose of Mrs. Shepard to take a much greater interest in social affairs than she even did in the past.

It is known to New York's inner social circle that Mrs. Shepard in memory of her father has always appeared in semi-mourning. She has taken little part in purely social affairs. To some extent, at least, and so far as her judgment decides, she will enter society and take advantage of the position which is rightfully hers.

To Wear Gayer Gowns.

Her purple, black and white gowns will give place to some exquisite dresses of wistarias, heliotropes and blues. Mr. and Mrs. Shepard will patronize the opera and other fashionable and enjoyable affairs.

But Mrs. Shepard has let every one know, and she is quite emphatic about it, that she does not propose to allow any of the work along charitable lines to languish because she got married. She has sent word that she will be helped in this work by her husband, who thoroughly appreciates what she has done in the past, and what they can do together in a charitable way in the future.

Some of the Gifts.

The jewel wedding gifts were displayed in a glass case among the other presents in the art gallery, and were guarded all day and last night by Pinkerton detectives. A partial list of the gifts are as below:

Mr. and Mrs. George J. Gould—A corsage pin, consisting of a large bowknot of diamonds and pearls, with a huge marquise diamond exquisitely set in platinum, surrounded by pearls, and suspended therefrom by strands of pearls.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Gould—A long fan chain made up entirely of diamonds, numbering about 200, set in platinum.

Howard Gould—An imported ivory statue entitled "Honor."

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Gould—A chain necklace of pearls, diamonds and emeralds, with a large triangular-shaped pendant of diamonds and emeralds of wonderful beauty.

Helen and Dorothy Gould—A bag of gold mesh, mounted with diamonds and sapphires.

Kindgon, George, Jr., Edith and Gloria Gould—An exquisite square-cut diamond ring set in platinum surrounded by brilliants.

Louis J. Shepard—To his brother, a pair of moonstone cuff links set in platinum.

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Gould—A teakwood stand supporting a handsome Chinese vase.

The Duchess de Talleyrand—Lace for the bride's wedding gown, lace handkerchief and the exquisite lace veil.

Mr. and Mrs. Robbie and the employes at Lyndhurst—A silver centrepiece for fruits or flowers.

Employes of the town house—A table set of silver and dishes.

Daniel S. Miller, uncle of the bride—A rare book beautifully tooled, binding with precious stones.

Mrs. F. Z. Dickinson, the bride's aunt—A silver tray with coffee urn, formerly the property of the bride's grandmother.

E. Z. Dickinson—A miniature.

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Bush—A silver centrepiece, formerly the property of General Graf von Brittenger.

Officers of Denver & Rio Grande Railroad Company—A silver pitcher and tray.

Enlisted men of the United States Atlantic Fleet—A gold loving cup, appropriately inscribed.

Loses $50, Girl and Friend Testing Her Devotion by Supper

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—"Barbour certainly is a prince. He's one grand boy. He gave me $5 and promised me $45 more if I would take his girl out to dinner and a show."

This was the way Charles Delmar explained it to a friend. Delmar had dressed in his best suit, hailed a taxi and drove in splendor to the home of the girl, Miss Mildred Jones, No. 4324 Lake avenue.

Miss Jones was pleased to meet him, the show was great, and Miss Jones said "All right," when he proposed supper.

The two therefore tripped gaily toward a lobster palace, Delmar jingling the coins in his pocket and wondering if Barbour would "really come across" with the other $45.

When, speaking of miracles, out of the night stepped Barbour—S. H. Barbour, No. 3258 Prairie avenue—but not just the same, for he was mad, jealous, raving, and there was no $45.

Instead, Barbour knocked Delmar down, ruffled up Miss Jones quite a bit and had everybody arrested.

He just wanted to see, he explained, if his girl would accept attentions from another.

Delmar told the story in court and it cost Barbour $50 and the girl.

Incidentally Delmar now places Barbour something below the princely rank.

PLAYS ON VIOLIN AS HE ENDS LIFE

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—While the fumes of gas slowly filled the room and claimed his life, William Kaiser, seventy-two years old, sat until the end in his lonely and wretched room at No. 678 Glenmore avenue east, playing Beethoven's sonata in D minor on an old violin.

The instrument was a gift from his employers, a firm of violin makers, who asked the old man for his resignation on account of age.

THIS ELIXIR CURES "WHILE YOU WAIT"

LONDON, Jan. 23.—A small consignment of Dr. Doyf's "Elixir of Life"—or, in simpler language, mycolysine or a solution of colloidale phagogene polyvalente—arrived in London from Paris today. Dr. Doyf claims that his mixture will cure ninety-nine diseases "while you wait."

PRINCE WILLIAM ON PARSIFAL PETITION

BERLIN, Jan. 23.—Crown Prince Frederick William heads the list of signers of a petition which has been presented to the Reichstag asking for the enactment of a special law to extend the copyright of Richard Wagner's opera, "Parsifal," which expires this year.

ANNIE RUSSELL CHARMS AGAIN IN 'THE RIVALS'

Seldom has there been produced in Boston a more finely acted or better staged presentation of "The Rivals" than was seen last night at the Shubert Theatre, where Miss Annie Russell appeared in the leading role. The audience was highly appreciative of the old and tested comedy, and it was shown that it is just as popular today as some of the latest laugh-producing plays.

Miss Russell appeared to exceptional advantage as Lady Languish. She is charmingly youthful in appearance, and her impersonation of the mischievous Lady caused the audience to bubble with delight. Not only were Miss Russell and the rest of the company happily cast in the revival of Sheridan's famous play, but the mountings of the production were most pleasing to the eye.

Always a favorite in Boston, Annie Russell is never more appreciated than when she appears in those sweet old English comedies, of which "The Rivals" is the headliner. Many of those who saw the performance last night had seen it many times before with casts containing some of the greatest performers the world ever saw.

"Yet," said one of the old timers, "I can't recall that I ever enjoyed the play more in my life than tonight."

Another production of "The Rivals" will be given tonight, while the bill for the rest of the week will be "She Stoops to Conquer."

STOMACH SICK, SOUR, UPSET AND FULL OF GAS? PAPE'S DIAPEPSIN

In five minutes! Time it! All Indigestion, Heartburn and Dyspepsia gone and your stomach feels fine.

Wonder what upset your stomach—which portion of the food did the damage—do you? Well, don't bother. If your stomach is in revolt; if sour, gassy and upset, and what you just ate fermented into stubborn lumps; your head dizzy and aches; belch gases and acids and eructate undigested food, breath foul, tongue coated—just take a little Diapepsin and in five minutes you will wonder what became of the indigestion and distress.

Millions of men and women today know that it is needless to have a bad stomach. A little Diapepsin occasionally keeps the stomach regulated and they eat their favorite foods without fear.

If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal limit without rebellion; if your food is a damage instead of a help, remember, the quickest, surest, most harmless relief is Pape's Diapepsin, which costs only fifty cents for a large case at drug stores. It's truly wonderful—it digests food and sets things straight so gently and easily that it is astonishing. Please don't go on and on with a weak, disordered stomach; it's so unnecessary.

MUNICIPAL A. A. PLANS WINTER TRACK GAMES

A series of Winter games and all-round efficiency tests for working boys and young men is announced to be conducted in co-operation by the Evening Centres of the School Department and the Municipal Athletic Association. It is intended to conduct a preliminary meet for each district of the city, following the same plan as for the annual Summer games. A final meet, and possibly semi-finals, will be held for winners in the trial contests.

Although the exact dates have not yet been determined, the present intention is to run the meets from February 15 to March 22 for these districts: Roxbury, East Boston, Charlestown, South Boston, West End and North End, South End, Dorchester, Brighton, Hyde Park, West Roxbury, Roslindale and Jamaica Plain.

This plan will cover the Winter games of the Municipal Athletic Association and the interclub ahtletic contests, which are part of the Evening Centre schedule. So far as possible the meets will be in school gymnasiums. In sections where no Evening Centres have yet been established, other provision will be made.

The meets are to be open to all employed boys who are residents of Boston. Entries will be required on blanks to be obtained after February 1 from the Evening Centres, or from the Municipal A. A. office, No. 6 Beacon street.

Participants will be divided into three classes, according to age and height. Classes and events will be as follows:

Class A—Boys 17 years and over, 5 feet 5 inches and up in height: 18-foot rope climb without use of legs; 8 potato race; 3 standing broad jumps; fence vault for height; 4-foot buck jump for distance over rope. (Distance to be marked from a point in the centre of the buck on the floor level. The same rules as for broad jumps to govern.)

Class B—Boys 14 to 16 years of age, 5 feet 1 inch to 5 feet 5 inches in height: 18-foot rope climb with use of legs; 6 potato race; 3 standing broad jumps; fence vault; 3½-foot buck jump for distance.

Class C—Boys under 14 years of age, under 5 feet 1 inch in height; 14-foot rope climb with use of legs; 4 potato race; 3 standing broad jumps; fence vault; 3-foot buck jump for distance.

WINTHROP YACHTMEN PLAN FOR NEW CLASS

The Winthrop Yacht Club will build a class of design sloops for next season's races. These boats will be identical with the Hingham Y. C. class, twenty-two feet overall, fifteen feet waterline, centreboard. The cost is estimated at about $400. Ralph F. Doudey, a prominent member of the Winthrop Yacht Club, is instrumental in the forming of the class, and many cups have been offered for the events in which the class will participate.

HALPIN TO REVIEW ATHLETIC CAREERS OF NEW ENGLAND STARS

OWING to the increased interest in track athletics, indoor and outdoor, the AMERICAN will print a series of articles, daily and Sunday, in which THOMAS J. HALPIN, quarter-mile champion of United States and Canada, and track expert of the AMERICAN, will review the athletic careers of the star cinder path performers in New England.

All athletes who have a chance to win laurels in the Natoinal indoor title meet and other college and club athletes will be included in the list.

Halpin has inside "dope" on the young men in question and will give this information first hand to the readers of the AMERICAN.

The first article, which will be printed next Sunday, will dispose of EDDIE K. MERRIHEW, the former Harvard star and now competing under the colors of the B. A. A.

COMMERCIAL TRUCK SHOW ILLUSTRATES ALL TRAFFIC PROBLEMS

By J. C. KERRISON.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Now that the big truck show is in full swing, the automatic dumping devices and hoists are in constant operation. The merchants and contractors who have use for this particular type are keeping the sales force in Madison Square Garden and the Grand Central Palace busy demonstrating all of these devices.

The dumping schemes have several methods of operation. The White Company has one driven from the transmission and controlled by a hand lever. The mechanism consists of a screw and nut placed horizontally along the frame of the truck and completely protected by the housing. The body can be lifted at an angle of forty-five degrees and any load can be discharged in thirty seconds.

One of the Mack trucks has a hoisting winch, operated by the motor, which will discharge a load of seven and a half tons in about half a minute. On a Packard chassis there is a dumping device, by a Philadelphia maker, for which great speed and convenience is claimed. On the Pierce-Arrow is a hydraulic hoist, operated from a countershaft extended at the front end of the transmission. From this, by sprocket and clutch, an oil pump is operated. The oil under pressure forces up a piston until the top of the stroke is reached. By an automatic device the body is then held at rest. Actual lifting is accomplished by flexible steel cable passing over two sheaves and under a third central sheave.

The operation of the screw hoist on a Peerless chassis is another that is being watched with great interest by the men in the hauling and contracting business.

One of the trade changes announced today was made by the International Motor Company, which makes the Hewett, Mack and Saurer trucks. They have established a Boston branch and Ralph E. Ketchum, formerly manager of the Boston branch of the General Motors Truck Company, will be manager of the new International Boston branch.

Line of Electric Trucks.

The electric truck is one that is attracting a great deal of attention. Day Baker, one of the live wires of the electric truck trade in New England, is here with a corps of salesmen and they are putting in a strenuous time at the General Vehicle Company's exhibit at the Palace. They have a full line of electric trucks up to six tons, and the display is coming in for its share of attention from the businessmen. This particular line of vehicles is very popular, and, it is said, that every fourth truck running in New York city is one of the General Vehicle line.

The Waverley electric, which is handled in Boston by J. W. Bowman, has a light truck and medium tonnage vehicle on exhibition. The Waverley Company was one of the first electric concerns to turn out a truck, and their line has been quite successful.

The Baker electric, which has been firmly established in Boston for some time, has an exhibition that comes in for much attention. F. N. Phelps, who looks out for the truck end for this concern in Boston, is here.

The light delivery trucks are in greater evidence than at any other show. This is a big field and the manufacturer was quick to realize this fact. One of the light trucks at the show is the Brown Commercial car, manufactured by Will Brown, who formerly was at the head of the Mais truck. Frank Wentworth, who is one of the big distributors of pleasure cars in New England, handling the Overland in Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont and the Marion in all New England, is the New England distributor for this car. It has an internal gear drive of the compact type and has all the modern refinements.

Boston Men Busy.

The Stewart truck, a light delivery car, is another line that recently broke into the Boston market. This product is manufactured in Buffalo and is handled in New England by H. Ross Maddock, of Medford. The makers of this truck are showing a variety of models.

The Koehler truck, which is not new to Boston, is another that is attracting attention. It is a light delivery affair and built along very practical lines. It is handled in Boston by W. H. Shutt, the representative of the Koehler Company. It has many styles of body and should be a popular type with the small merchant.

The Bessmer truck, which was shown at the Boston Commercial Vehicle show last March and which has since been marketed in Boston with a great deal of success, is attracting considerable attention at the show.

The Lauth-Juergens truck, represented in New England by Myers-Abrams, had a display of all sizes and types. W. C. Harmon, who is the salesmanager for the Myers-Abrams Company and who put this line on the map around New England, is here with the exhibit.

Stanley Martin, who has done so much with the Decatur truck in Boston, is here at its exhibit, where they are showing a number of models with different types of bodies. Last year, just before the truck show opened in New York, the Decatur made a non-stop run from Boston that attracted considerable attention. The truck made the trip from the Hub to Gotham with the ground covered with snow.

M. E. Grable, who has conducted such a strenuous selling campaign with the Universal truck in Boston, is one of the visitors at this concern's display at the Palace. The Universal Company seems to have a habit of gathering live wires, for their exhibit is constantly crowded and many orders for trucks have been taken.

Question of Tires.

The Mais truck, one of the first internal gear driven motor trucks put on the market, has a display that is very interesting. The R. L. & H. H. Smith Company markets this truck in New England and has met with a great deal of success. A stripped chassis, showing the internal gear drive and several different types of bodies, is on display.

The tire companies have a big display, for they realize that the truck industry is in its infancy and in times to come it will outrival the pleasure end. One of the new tires at Madison Square Garden is the continuous base notched tread tire, which Manager Tom Glenn of the Firestone Company is showing to the New England trade. Since heavy service motor trucks came into use there have been heavy expense and considerable dissatisfaction owing to the fact that the rear tires on the unusually heavy vehicles do not seem to give the service they should. The Firestone experts ascribe the trouble to the fact that the "traction wave" formed with the ordinary tire tore the tread away from the base.

The Firestone continuous base notched tread tire is designed to overcome this possibility of tread separation by preventing the cause. There is a space between the blocks of the tread into which the displaced rubber passes.

GALLANT WINS IN BOUT WITH BILLY NIXON

MANCHESTER, N. H., Jan. 23.—Gilbert Gallant of Chelsea shaded Billy Nixon of Cambridge in a twelve-round bout in Mechanics Hall last night before a large crowd and received the decision. It was a fine exhibition of the boxing game, with few hard blows being delivered by either man, and both being apparently as fresh at the close as when the bout opened.

Gallant was wild in almost every round, his best meant blows falling far short of the mark, but he showed cleverness in getting under Nixon's left-hand punches. He shaded Nixon in seven of the rounds, and in none of the remaining five did Nixon have an undisputed lead.

In the semi-final Young Josephs of Lowell gave Young Mayo of Biddeford a bad beating, the Maine boxer getting the better of the second round only.

TODAY'S BEST SPORT STORY

Joe Cox, bowler, and well known South End sporting man, tells the following:

Bill Sweney, second baseman of the Boston Nationals, asked Sa Hera, a mind reader at a Cincinnati theatre, where the Boston club would finish. "I can tell you," Sa Hera answered, "but I hate to do it."

SIDELIGHTS ON SPORTS

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

HUGHEY JENNINGS, former sporting editor (for one week only) of the AMERICAN, has reached New York in his swing around the vaudeville circle. Referring to Davy Jones' remarks, in which Davy said Jennings abused his players last season, Jennings said:

"Jones' remarks are not worth answering. He wasn't good enough for the Detroits, so we let him go."

Jennings, reports say, is not worrying much over the threats of Cobb and Crawford to retire unless they get what they want in the way of salary. Regarding the engagement of Frank Chance to manage the New Yorks, the Tiger manager said:

"The biggest thing that could have happened to the American League in this city. Chance is one of the best managers, either on or off the bench, that the game has ever known. Murphy's talk that Chance may not succeed as a bench manager is simply a case of sour grapes."

RAY HARTZELL is in New York and announces that he is a candidate for second base. With Hal Chase also desirous of holding down the second cushion Manager Chance will have to do some choosing. He intimated the other day that he saw the necessity of bolstering up the infield and said he would allow Chase to show what he could do at second. In case Prince Hal made good there he was willing to play first himself.

As for Hartzell he used to play second; in fact, that was his position when he broke into the American League, but in St. Louis he was shifted to third and when he went to New York they kept him there. He is a trifle slow on his feet, but no more so than Frank Laporte who was kept at second on the New York team for many years.

IN spite of the fact that the New Yorks finished last in the race for the pennant Chance has a pretty fair ball club to start the season with. If Wolverton had done better with this same team toward the close of last season he might still be the manager of the New Yorks and Frank Chance the manager of his orange grove in California.

Frank Farrell says he did not find fault with Wolverton's work until the team's losing streak in September. Of the last twenty-four games the Hillmen played they won three, one of which was handed to them on the Hilltop by Clark Griffith when, after being assured the Washington team would finish second, the genial Clark sent Altrock and Schaefer in the box and took a little turn on the slab himself. Chase landed on one of Griff's offerings for a home run with two men on the bases.

"THE awful showing of my club in the last month of the season convinced me that Wolverton was not of major league calibre," said Farrell recently. "At that time Wolverton had a better club in the field than at any other time in the season. Wolverton had procured Lelivelt, McMillan, Keating, Midliff and others to strengthen the team, while his pitching staff, especially McConnell and Ford, was going better than at any other time in the campaign.

"Yet in spite of this, games were lost with monotonous regularity, and what got my goat was that the other teams were using mostly youngsters, especially in the box. In Detroit they mopped us up in an entire series with recruit pitchers, while Cleveland, Philadelphia and other teams trounced us with pitchers making their major league debut. In one game the Athletics made four hits, and we made fourteen off a young pitcher, Crabb, but they beat us just the same."

DUFFY LEWIS, the Red Sox leftfielder who did not do much execution against Christie Mathewson's delivery, has just recovered from the daze the last game of the World's Series left him in. He is in California and in one of the newspapers out there he has unbosomed himself regarding what he thinks of Big Six as a pitcher. He says:

"Mathewson unquestionably did the best pitching on the New York side in the World's Series. It is true Marquard beat us twice, and Mathewson did not win a game, but to my way of thinking there is no comparison between the two pitchers.

"Mathewson was unlucky in the series or the result might have been different. All the boys agreed to that. We all feel we did not play our game in the series and are confident we are the better team, but few of the Red Sox players will deny that Matty did not show us some wonderful pitching, and pitching that reserved to win.

"They say Mathewson has gone back. If he has gone back I would like to have seen him in his prime. I guess when Matty was in his prime a fellow was lucky to get two hits off him a season."

Arlington High Boys Confident of a Win Over Medford Team

Coach McCarty of the Arlington High indoor track team has his men training every afternoon on the board track on Tufts oval. He is working hard with the team and hopes to do as well as he did with the cross-country squad last Fall.

This is the first indoor track team to represent Arlington High and therefore the men are inexperienced and find it difficult to take the corners. With such men as Captain Goldsmith, Zwinge, Wimderlich, Johnson, Kimball and Adams of last year's champion cross-country team, Arlington should make Medford High travel some when they meet in the Coast Artillery games January 25 in a relay race.

Arlington High will also be represented at the Boston College games on February 1, the B. A. A. games on February 8, and at the schoolboy championship in Mechanics Hall on March 1.

Advice to the Heart-Hungry

The Cheese-Hound

Dear Editor:--

For years I have been passionately in love with a young lady who also loved me. But a month ago she bought a small dog. I think he's a cheese-hound.

Now, whenever I call on her, she keeps the dog in her lap, and when I try to hold her hand he bites me on the wrist.

I could win her back if I had the nerve to throw the dog out the window. How can I get the nerve?

Yours truly,

I. M. Wurred

DREW DECLARES B. A. A. DRAWS A "COLORED LINE"

Howard Drew, the sensational sprinter of Springfield High School, declares that he will not be a starter in the sprint race at the classic B. A. A. indoor track meet which will be held in this city next month. Drew says that the reason why he will not take part in the Unicorn games is because the officials of the Back Bay club have no use for negro athletes and that they have never been anxious to have them compete at B. A. A. meets.

The sprint wonder declares that he has been in communication with the track manager of the B. A. A. and that the latter has drawn the "color line."

Colonel George B. Billings, chairman of the athletic committee at the B. A. A., declares that there is no truth in what Drew says. Billings said:

"There are other reasons than those mentioned by Drew why he has decided not to run in our games. No colored athlete who has been any good has ever been refused a chance to run at our meets.

"The late John Taylor ran at the club's games when he was at the University of Pennsylvania. Bowser of South Boston also has competed, and there are other colored athletes who have taken part in the games.

"I would like Drew to show a single case where a colored athlete who amounted to anything in athletics was turned down by the club in favor of other athletes.

"Neither I nor Manager George Brown ever gave Drew cause for assuming that his entry or that of any other colored athlete would be turned down.

"We got a letter from Drew about the matter, and the reasons he gives for his action are, as I recollect, different from what he now states. Manager George Brown has the letter.

"While we would have liked to have Drew compete in the games, he must under stand that the games will be held just the same, even though he will not compete."

STAR AMATEURS MEET IN BOXING TOURNEY AT CAMBRIDGE CLUB

By JACK CONWAY.

THE amateur boxers of Greater Boston will be given another opportunity to prove what they can do in the ring, at the tournament of the Cambridge A. A., which will be conducted in Institute Hall, Cambridge, this evening. A large number of entries have been received by Johnny McGann, who has charge of the bouts, and he says that there will be at least twenty bouts.

There are three open classes. Bouts will be held at 115, 125 and 135 pounds. Besides the contests in the open classes there will also be special bouts between well known performers.

Johnny O'Brien, the Roxbury boy who recently won the premier laurels in the 105-pound class at Brockton, will clash with Jack Dudley of Cambridge, who won first prize in the 105-pound division at the North Cambridge tournament.

These two boys are evenly matched, and they should put up a fast bout. O'Brien and Dudley both have had considerable experience, and usually perform well.

The other special bout will be between Patsy Greene of Cambridge, one of the most popular amateur boxers in New England, and George Pritchard, the veteran Forest Hills performer. The men will weigh 115 pounds and should make the fur fly from start to finish. Greene recently won from Pritchard in a hard battle at the Dorchester Club, and the latter is out to reverse the decision tonight.

* * *

"YOUNG" McDONOUGH, the rugged Manchester lightweight, will exchange punches with Johnny Dohan, the Brooklyn boxer, before the Lowell A. C. tomorrow night. If the past records of the two men count for anything, it will be a stirring mixup.

McDonough and Dohan clashed in a ten-round bout at Albany, N. Y., on New Year's Day, and the affair was declared a draw, after a hard struggle. McDonough has been training for the bout at Highland Lake, and he says that he never felt better in his life than he does now.

There are few New England boxers who have done as much work in the ring during the past two years as McDonough. He has a strong constitution and is able to fight once or twice each week without showing any ill effects. And what is of still more importance, he usually wins his bouts.

* * *

THE Brooklyn mitt wielder has made a fine record in the ring. He has met such well known men as Leach Cross, "Young" Lougerey, Billy Glover, "Young" Otto, Joe Beddell, Paddy Sullivan, Pal Moore, Tommy Murphy, "Young" Donahue, "Dancing Master" O'Hearn, and our own Eddie Murphy, whom he held to a fifteen-round draw.

* * *

E. W. HANKS, the leading sportsman in Maine, will stage three good bouts at Lewiston tonight. Hanks has moved his ring from Augusta, where some unscrupulous New York managers have almost "killed" the fight game. The ring at Lewiston is only eleven feet inside of the ropes, which makes it impossible for the boxers to "stall."

Jimmy Moriarty of Lowell and Bill Flemming of Old Town meet in two six-round bouts. Both men are sluggers, and there is sure to be some sport. Teddy Murphy of this city and "Young" La Roche of Lewiston meet in two more six-round contests. There will also be a six-round battle between Billy Corrigan of Cambridge and "Young" Trampanier of Lewiston.

* * *

GILBERT GALLANT, the stout-hearted Chelsea lightweight, proved that he is not a back number when he won a decision from Billy Nixon of Cambridge, at Manchester, N. H., last night. Alex McLean's protege is now eager to get another match with one Steve Kennedy of Lawrence, whom he lost to several weeks ago. Gallant still believes that he would be able to defeat Jim Crilley's battler.

* * *

NIXON is not the least bit discouraged by his defeat, and is anxious to get another crack at Gallant. He believes that if he had stood off at long range and boxed the Chelsea lightweight instead of trying to slug with him, that he would have won.

* * *

THE defeat of Freddy Duffy by "Young" A'Hearn, who landed a knockout punch in the fourth round, was a big surprise to the many admirers of the Jamaica Plain boy. Duffy, however, is still young. He takes good care of himself, and he may still gain prominence in the squared circle. I attribute Duffy's downfall last night to the fact that he has done but very little boxing during the past six months.

* * *

"KID" BLOCK, one of the star member of the famous "Happy Twenty," tells me that he has unearthed a new "white hope." The name of this young husky is Hughey McCarthy, and he hails from dear old South Boston. "McCarthy was formerly a wrestler," said Block, today, "but he has now decided to try for honors in the heavyweight boxing division. He would like to start his ring campaign by meeting Arthur Pelky of North Adams, who has got an idea that he is a regular big league fighter."

LYNN KENNEL CLUB OPENS TWO-DAY SHOW

LYNN, Jan. 23.—The annual bench show of the Lynn Kennel Club opened in Odd Fellows' Hall this morning and more than 400 dogs were exhibited. F. H. Farwell of Orange, Tex., was represented by Sabin Reckoner, one of the finest fox terriers in the world. New York and Pennsylvania were also represented.

LEAGUE GAME OFF.

The opening game in the Triangular Hockey League series for the Newton High and the Cambridge Latin School sevens, scheduled for this afternoon, has been postponed to January 29 and will be played at the Boston Arena. Richard Rocquemore, point, and Ray Stanley, forward, who recently gave up hockey to join the track team, notified Captain Louis Forte and Manager Donald Brooks that they will return to the seven for the Cambridge Latin game.

HARVARD WRESTLERS WIN.

Harvard's wrestling team won its first meet of the season in the Hemenway Gymnasium by 6 matches to 3 over the Clapp Memorial A. A. of East Weymouth. Harvard excelled in the lightweight classes, where three throws were scored. The Crimson also got a throw in the heavyweights and decisions on two other matches. All three points made were on decisions.

HARVARD RELAY RUNNERS MEET B. A. A. STARS

By THOMAS J. HALPIN.
(Quarter-mile Champion of United States and Canada.)

HALPIN

The Harvard and B. A. A. relay teams that will line up at the Coast Artillery games on Saturday night are evenly matched. Although the B. A. A. will send the first quarter-mile relay team to compete against the New York A. C. and the Irish-American teams in New York on the same night this only adds interest to the two races.

Last year the B. A. A. representatives made a procession of the two races they engaged in with the Crimson quartets. Saturday evening two teams will represent both associations. In one race each man covers two laps of the track or 320 yards, while in the other each team will consist of half-milers, each of whom will cover the distance of the full relay runners.

Harvard will be strengthened by the addition of Barron, one of the finest double furlongers that has ever represented the Cambridge University. In the dual meets last season he covered the distance in 49 1-5 seconds, a fine performance. Although the distance will be 120 yards shorter, the long stretches afforded by the track in the South Armory will give the Crimson runner a chance to show his speed.

Burns on B. A. A. Team.

Running anchor for the Boston team will be Freddy Burns, the former Brown star. Burns needs no introduction to this city, as he competed for several years as a schoolboy here. He now holds the 300-yard record for schoolboys. The 320-yard distance will just suit the Unicorn flier and if he is given an even start with Barron, the Harvard runner, a fine race can be expected. The B. A. A. will probably enter O'Hara, Russell and Gram as the other members of the team. Harvard will have O'Brien, Huling and DeGozzaldi, all fast sprinters.

In the 640-yard relay, the B. A. A. will have Powers and Hedlund, but too much cannot be expected of these men, as they are competing out of their distance. Both are milers with national reputations and if the distance were a half-mile, a grand performance could be expected of them, but, inasmuch as they are competing over a distance that is entirely new to them and much too short for a miler, only a fair performance can be expected.

They will, however, be strengthened by two good half-milers in Warner and Marceau, both of whom can turn two minutes for the distance. Marceau, who formerly competed for Tech, ran on the two-mile relay for that school so the distance will not be new to him.

Warren a Speedy Runner.

Harvard has a wealth of material to pick from. Warren appears to be as fast as any of the candidates and he has had several years' experience as a relay runner. The other promising men are Lawless and Koch.

Coach Ryder of the B. A. A. believes that his men will perform up to their usual standard and that they will defeat both teams from across the Charles.

BROWN TANK MEN BATTLE HARVARD IN RELAY RACE

The relay swimming teams representing Harvard and Brown will compete at the dual meet between the Brookline Swimming Club and McGill University, which will be held at the Ocean Pier Baths at Revere on January 29.

Harvard will be represented by one of the speediest fours that has represented the Crimson in years. Hitchcock, Gilman, Logan and Fullerton form a speedy combination that will be hard to beat.

Hitchcock, captain of the swimming team and tackle on last season's varsity football team, comes from Honolulu where many of the fastest swimmers who have represented Harvard in past years have been developed. Gilman, who also comes from Honolulu, is a fast and experienced performer and gives promise of developing into a second Paul Withington.

Fullerton, a freshman, comes from Andover Academy, where in his "prep" school days he was considered one of the speediest prep school swimmers in the country. Logan, the fourth man, is ranked among the best of the college swimmers and formerly represented the B. A. A.

Brown will present a well balanced team capable of fighting to the end and feel confident that they will win over their Crimson rivals. The team will be composed of Captain Smith, Hull, Scherer, Harris and Whittemore. Members of both teams will compete in the 100-yard open handicap race.

The World's Meanest Man

Dorothy Dix Says He Is the One Whose Attentions to Women Are Without Serious Intention.

SOME years ago there was a spirited discussion in the papers as to what type of man was entitled to receive the medal for the meanest man. If I had the awarding of the prize I think I should give it to the man whose attentions to a woman are without intentions. The man who will deliberately win a girl's heart, intending to throw it away when he is tired of playing with it, and who will let a woman waste the best years of her life on him and then desert her for a younger and fairer face when she gets the patient, waiting look that such women have in their eyes.

These tragedies are all too common, and a young woman has just been telling me a piteous little story in which one of these champion men is the hero—or the villain, to speak by the card. When this young woman was a blooming girl of twenty she became acquainted with a man who paid her assiduous attentions, and made ardent love to her, though he always stopped, as she now recalls, just short of popping the question.

The girl, however, was not ready to marry, as she was the support of parents to whom she was devoted. So she and the man fell into a pleasant arrangement that she considered an engagement. He monopolized her time, and thoughts, and affections. He camped on her parlor chairs, and ate her good dinners, and was as much at home in her house as her own family almost, and it never occurred to her that he was not as anxious to marry her as she was to marry him.

Not a Marrying Man

Finally, after twelve years of this sentimental state, fate was kind to the woman. A small inheritance came to her parents so that they were no longer dependent on her, and she felt that she could leave them, and go with a clear conscience to her own home.

Trembling with eagerness and the joyful news she had to impart, she rushed to the man and told him that their long waiting was over, and that they could be married at last. And the man replied that he wasn't a marrying man, and had never had the slightest intentions of slipping his head in the matrimonial noose.

The woman is heartbroken. The man has been the centre of her life so long that she cannot tear him out of it, and she asks pitifully what she shall do.

Of course there is just one thing that a woman with any self-respect can do under such circumstances, and that is to take a broom and sweep such trash out of her house. There are many contemptible men in the world, but the man who is a welcher in love is the most loathsome of them all.

He is worse than a thief. He is worse than a murderer. For if a woman is robbed of her purse she can earn more money; but if she is robbed of her youth and beauty, that has been taken which can never be replaced. Also it is less cruel to kill the body than to kill one's happiness and one's faith and trust.

Without Counting Cost

Yet there are many men who are selfish enough to amuse themselves by making love to women without counting the cost to their victims. They select the prettiest and most attractive girl they can find and proceed to blight her life with the attentions that are without intention. They call upon her continually, they are seen about with her everywhere, they fill up her dance program and monopolize her society.

They have no intention whatever of marrying; but they keep away the men who would marry, and so doom the girl to old maidenhood. It is a dog in the manger trick, and it is only after these dead beats in affection have flitted away to some new flame that the girl wakes up and realizes how dishonorably she has been treated.

Of course, in these days of the high cost of living, there are many men who cannot afford to marry, and who not only enjoy feminine society, but are attracted to some particular girl whom they would gladly lead to the altar if they could. It is a test of the true nobility and chivalry of such a man to consider the girl's happiness before his own pleasure, and when he cannot ask her to marry him to withdraw before she has learned to love him.

Competition Wins Love

It is idiotic, in the first place, to drive away the men who might propose for the man who never proposes, and, in the second place the woman who lets any man, save the man to whom she is actually married, think he is the only man to her knows little of how to play the love game and of the masculine way of a man with a maid.

For in love, as in business, competition is the life of trade, and nothing enhances a woman's value in a man's eyes so much as seeing that other men want her. Many a man is brought to the proposing point by the knowledge that if he doesn't ask a girl to marry him some rival suitor will.

I do not myself believe in long engagements, which wear the gilt off of romance before marriage, and stretch love's young dream out until it breaks of its own thinness, but at least the long engagement has the justification of hope and some definite end. No such excuse can be offered for a girl throwing away her marrying years and the treasure of her heart on a man who hasn't even asked her to marry him, and offers her nothing in the one-sided bargain.

All of which is by way of saying that while the man whose attentions are without intention is the yellow cur of humanity, the woman who puts up with these meaningless attentions is a perfect goose.

Could Hardly Care for Children — Finds Health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Bovina Center, N.Y.—"For six years I have not had as good health as I have now. I was very young when my first baby was born and my health was very bad after that. I was not regular and I had pains in my back and was so poorly that I could hardly take care of my two children. I doctored with several doctors but got no better. They told me there was no help without an operation. I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has helped me wonderfully. I do most of my own work now and take care of my children. I recommend your remedies to all suffering women."—MRS. WILLARD A. GRAHAM, Care of ELSWORTH TUTTLE, Bovina Center, N.Y.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and today holds the record of being the most successful remedy we know for woman's ills. If you need such a medicine why don't you try it?

Every woman ought to have Lydia E. Pinkham's 80 Page Text Book. It is not a book for general distribution as it is too expensive. It is free, and only obtainable by mail. Write for it to-day. Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

The Reason She Said "YES" — By Nell Brinkley

Copyright, 1913, by American-Journal-Examiner

And Love Mouthed to the Girl—"That Is You Two, Many Years Away. Love Is Not a Short Thing—It Must Last—Years Are Long—and You Must Know to Be Content."

BETTY wasn't sure—n-not quite! She knew that her heart literally turned over when she heard his footsteps ringing along toward her house on a cold January night—she knew she turned pink to the ears when she even saw a name like his on a shop window—she knew that even if it rained like the dickens on her pet hat and made pulp of it—if he was along she wouldn't care!

The last almost made her know—but she wasn't quite sure. N-n-n-not perfectly

But the twilight-time he asked her with one black sleeve about her white neck and a rather worried lift to his brows—Love beat his wings in the dusk behind his black head and frantically pointed a fat fore-finger at an argument he had summoned from thin-air.

Into the dusk behind the pleader's back there grew a misty picture—a bent old man with thin white locks and black-live eyes brooding under white brows, under his aged throat a low collar and a dingy, fat black tie. And the lines of his face were deep like scars. In the hollow of his shoulders, filling it with her ample little body, hands demurely folded over her generous belt, plaintive-faced, frosty-haired, seamed of face and thin of lip—with her once lovely throat fallen and the luring curve of her cheek a hollow, nested a little old Lady.

And Love mouthed to the girl—"That is you two—many, many years away. Love is not a short thing—it must last—years are long—and you must KNOW to be content. Do you KNOW? Will you care THEN?"

And Betty dragged her misty eyes away from Love's bit of sorcery, the picture faded and she looked back at the worried, dark eyes coaxing her own and answered "YES." And that was the reason why.

NELL BRINKLEY.

What Do You Say?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"EVERY book is a quotation; and every house is a quotation out of all forests and mines and stone quarries; and every man is a quotation from all his ancestors."—Emerson.

I would like to have my girls read that carefully, and then consider it.

If every one of you is a quotation from all your ancestors, what is it you say?

If a girl is flippant, does she realize that her flippancy makes others wonder what kind of a mother she has?

If she is careless in attire, and has loose strings hanging where strings should not be, does she think that she is a quotation from her ancestors, a quotation that tells the world her mother is a very untidy woman?

If she is loud in dress and boisterous in speech, does she know that she is a quotation that says her mother talks always in a shrill scream?

If Emerson is right, and it is hoped, for the sake of many mothers, that he isn't, many girls are quotations that arouse no interest to learn more of the book.

I refer to the girl who laughs in a shrill calliope screech.

I refer to the girl with buttons off, and a collar that is soiled.

I refer to the girl who regards a quick impudence as brilliant repartee, and who would not refrain from saying a witty thing because it might hurt some one, but would, rather, say it the quicker.

I refer to the girl who uses slang herself, and regards slang talk in a young man as the height of brilliant conversation.

I refer to the girl who parades her "beau" in her talk with other girls as though he were a paragon of all virtues, and she the most irresistible of her sex to secure him.

I refer to the girl who tells her secrets to other girls, and never confides in her mother.

I refer to the girl who demands one standard of behavior for her brother, and is lax in the standard by which she measures the young man who courts her.

I refer to the girl who makes her obligations to her parents and her home come the last in her little world; who places the friends met away from home above those she left there; who slights the love of those who have done the most for her for the attention of those who would do the least.

I refer to the girl who contrasts the flattery of her friends with the kindly criticism of her parents and counts the former as of greater value.

If Emerson is right, and his admirers say he is never wrong, there are many girls who should sit down and candidly write what they are as quotations of their ancestors.

If they are frank, and desire to be just, they will confess that as quotations from their ancestors they have permitted themselves to become badly garbled.

They will admit they are not quotations from their ancestors, because they have permitted false standards, foolish customs, lax discipline and parental indulgence to so twist and turn them that the original sentiment is distorted or wholly lost.

Being just, and desirous to quote their ancestors to their credit, they will continue this self-analysis till it becomes self-reform.

One who finds a quotation that pleases wants to know more of the book.

It is my hope that every girl will so impress others by her modesty, intelligence and neatness that those who know her will long to also know her mother.

The Manicure Lady

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"GEORGE," said the Manicure Lady to the Head Barber, "did you ever catch one of them horned pouts? What kind of a animal are they, anyhow?"

"They ain't a animal," said the Head Barber. "It is a fish."

"There you go murdering the English language again," said the Manicure Lady. 'They ain't a animal, it is a fish.' That's fine talk for a grown man, ain't it?"

"I said 'it is a fish' and I mean it," declared the Head Barber, stolidly. "What did you start this conversation for, anyhow? If you want to get nasty about murdering the English, I could get nasty right back at you and tell you how you send all them verbs and nouns to the guillotine. If you want to gab me this morning, be civil, kiddo, be civil."

"I didn't mean nothing, George," said the Manicure Lady. "Only I do like to hear our beautiful language spoke as it ought for to be. What I started out for to say was that I got a letter from Wilfred this morning. The poor boy felt that broke down from looking for a job all these months that he persuaded the old gent to stake him to a trip up in the country. He's up there now, and this letter I got from him told about him catching a lot of horned pouts. He said they caught them at night with a lantern light to get them around, like old soldiers gathering around a camp fire. Maybe it must be some kind of a fish, as you said, George.

"Wilfred had to put some of his poetry into the letter, of course. He wouldn't be my brother if he didn't spout some of them rhymes. He called this one 'Lines to a Horned Pout,' and this is how it went, if you want to take a chance, the way Mister Brodie did.

Little horned pout that I caught last night
When the silvery moon was shining bright,
I think how short thy existence was
And shudder to think I was the cause.
Why should a strong man go about
Catching and killing you, horned pout?
Far from your friends and family dear
You lie cold in death in a pantry here,
Dreaming dreams that no mortal can see
And waiting to be swallowed by me.
This fact by me shall not be forgotten;
Little horned pout I treated you rotten.

"If he felt that tender toward the fish why didn't he go hunting instead?" asked the Head Barber.

"They wouldn't let him go hunting up there where he is, George," replied the Manicure Lady. "He was up there last year with an old gent named Ben Spear, and the two of them went out with two rabbit dogs, looking for rabbits. Before the sun had set they came back, without the dogs. Wilfred had shot one of the dogs for a rabbit, and Mister Spear had shot the other on the way home. He was aiming at a bluejay and shot low."

"They oughtn't to let a greenhorn handle a gun," said the Head Barber.

"No," agreed the Manicure Lady, "or a razor, either."

Lung Affection Yielded To This Remedy

Anyone interested in the treatment of Consumption should get one of the booklets telling of recoveries by the use of Eckman's Alterative. Coughs, Stubborn Colds and Pneumonia may be the beginning of more serious trouble—Eckman's Alterative is the effective remedy. Read Mr. Kanaly's statement:—

Saratoga, N. Y.

"Gentlemen: For five or six years I was troubled with cough and expectoration. I also had a high fever. My case was declared Consumption by my physician. I was given Cod Liver Oil, Creosote and other medicines, all without benefit.

"At Christmas time, 1906, I was not expected to live. Calling Dr. R. H. McCarthy, he advised the use of Eckman's Alterative, which I took with excellent results, and was entirely cured. I have gained in weight. I go out in all weathers and have had no cough or cold whatever. I give these facts to encourage others to use Eckman's Alterative."

(Sworn Affidavit)— JAS. W. KANALY.

Eckman's Alterative is effective in Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Throat and Lung Troubles and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain poisons, opiates or habit-forming drugs. For sale by all Riker-Jaynes Stores, Houghton & Dutton Drug Dept., and other leading druggists. Ask for booklet telling of recoveries, and write to Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for additional evidence.

That Style? Your Figure? Impossible!

Fat women who are contemplating a new gown in the mode will have to contemplate a reduction of their flesh before they visit the dressmaker.

Fortunately this is nothing like the hard labor it was when one had nothing but exercising or dieting to get results with. Nowadays a short course of the Marmola Prescription Tablets should bring any woman, however fat, to the proportions necessary for her to wear a Directoire gown.

Let her take a Marmola Tablet (made in accordance with the famous prescription and, therefore, harmless) after each meal and at bedtime and she should very soon be losing a pound a day. This result, accomplished without disturbing one's table customs, forming wrinkles or distressing the stomach, astonishes everybody.

Even one large case, costing only 75 cents at any druggist's, or the same amount direct by mail from the Marmola Company, Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich., gives positive results. This constitutes the acme of economy.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS AND ALL THE LATEST FINANCIAL NEWS

The Boston market opened firm and had more strength than New York. Copper warrants were quoted still higher in London, and it is reported that metal sales at 16½ cents a pound have been heavy.

Among issues to advance during the first hour in local trading were East Butte, Old Dominion, Utah Consolidated, Butte and Superior, Granby and U. S. Smelting. The price range was narrow.

By 11 o'clock in New York, Steel and Union Pacific were each down 1¼.

Corbin Copper Company directors have called for an assessment of $1 a share. Half is to be paid on February 11 and half on April 22.

New York Opened Lower.

Prices ranged downward in New York when that market opened. At the beginning of trading Reading, Amalgamated, Union Pacific and Steel were all fractionally lower. After the first few minutes there was a little improvement. American Can made a substantial gain, advancing 2 points to 31⅛. Canadian Pacific yielded 1½ at the start. Among the other losses were Northern Pacific ⅛, Missouri Pacific ⅛, American Cotton Oil ¼, Baltimore & Ohio ¼ and Lehigh Valley ⅛. Advances included United States Rubber ⅛, Tennessee Copper ⅛, Republic Iron & Steel ⅛, American Smelting ⅜, American Sugar ½, Pennsylvania ⅛ and Chino Copper ⅜.

The fact that foreign news was bullish seemed to have no effect upon New York trading.

The New York Sub-treasury gained $874,050 from the banks yesterday, and since Friday has gained $6,226,000.

Copper Still Rising in London.

Copper metal continued to rise speculatively when the London warrants market opened, spot being up 8s. 9d. and futures 11s. 3d.

It is said that there were heavy sales of electrolytic yesterday for February and March shipment at 16½ cents a pound after small lots of metal had been disposed of at 16 cents. The total of recent sales by the big concerns in the trade is estimated at about 50,000,000 pounds.

During 1912 twenty-seven mines produced a total aggregate of 1,128,382,071 pounds, representing an increase of 144,722,059 pounds over the 1911 output. The twenty-seven mines represented more than 90 per cent. of the total yield of this country, Mexico and Canada.

More Gold for Argentina.

More gold was engaged today for shipment to South America. Goldman, Sachs & Co. engaged an additional $1,000,000, bringing their total for the week up to $1,200,000. The National Bank of Commerce brought its prospective shipments up to $1,550,000 by engaging $250,000 more for Argentina.

Cotton Ginning Report.

The Government Census Bureau issued at Washington today a report which shows that 13,091,264 bales, counting round as half bales, were ginned from the growth of 1912 to January 16, compared with 14,515,799 for 1911 and 11,253,147 for 1910. Round bales included this year are 78,892, compared with 97,654 for 1911 and 111,079 for 1910. Sea Island included 70,760 for 1912, 109,867 for 1911 and 86,424 for 1910.

Financial News in Brief.

The Bank of England's minimum rate of discount remained unchanged today at 5 per cent. The bank's weekly statement gives its proportion of reserve to liabilities as 49.80 per cent. against 49.10 last week. This compares with a decline from 49.80 per cent. to 48.75 per cent. in the corresponding week last year.

One observer of stock trading says: "The 'scare' is out of the stock market, and the short interest is not yet eliminated."

The Iron Age says: "Consumption of iron and steel is undiminished and production continues at the maximum rate."

A Duluth correspondent writes regarding the strike in crosscut No. 3 in Shattuck-Arizona mine that the ore assayed 40 per cent. copper for eight feet besides showing forty ounces of silver to the ton and small gold values.

The government's parcel post seems to have affected the stock of express companies. Yesterday Adams Express declined 21¾ points from the last previous sale. There was a decline of 7½ for Wells-Fargo and United States Express went down a single point.

It is believed by European financiers that as soon as people on the continent become convinced there will not be big and general war, they will put the gold they have withdrawn for hoarding back into banks. But they expect this proceeding to be slow rather than sudden.

A Washington dispatch expresses the belief that the tariff on cotton manufactures may be cut to a minimum ad valorem as low as 5 per cent. The Underwood bill minimum was 15. Democrats on the House Ways and Means Committee are talking of a reduction which will save cotton goods consumers $80,000,000 a year.

Thompson, Towle & Co. say that December production of the La Rose Mines (limited) was 248,980 ounces of silver, having a gross value of $157,305. The total income for the month was $163,128, and total expenses $67,826, leaving the profit for the month $95,301. Preliminary figures for 1912 indicate a total production of 2,818,000 ounces of silver, having a gross value of $1,748,000. The net profit after allowing for all expenses and new construction amounted to $1,025,000. The company's financial statement, according to its report, shows cash and ore on hand amounting to $1,866,000.

BY SISTERS OF HOLY CROSS

Endorsement of Father John's Medicine as a Tonic and Body Builder. Cures Colds and Lung Troubles.

This is one of the many letters we have received from hospitals and institutions all over Canada and the United States:—

"We cheerfully recommend Father John's Medicine as a good remedy for bronchial troubles and as a tonic and body builder for those who are weak and run down. Several persons of our institution have used it with beneficial results." (Signed) Sisters of Holy Cross, 44 Chandler St., Nashua, N. H. Not a "cough syrup" or a patent medicine with weakening stimulants, but a food medicine—the prescription of an eminent specialist. Cures colds and all throat troubles.

SOLD OUT TO RAYMOND

From Our New York Agent
New York, Jan. 16th, 1913.
The Raymond Syndicate,
Boston, Mass.
Gentlemen:

"Weber & Heilbroner have 336 dozen shirts from the William Vogel & Son stock which they want to sell. This consists of all new goods, principally double French cuffs, Russian cords, imported Austrian shirts, imported madras, silk and linen. I can buy the whole stock at a little less than fifty cents on the dollar. If you want them please wire on receipt of this letter as the matter is open only until twelve o'clock to-morrow."

Telegram to Our New York Agent
Boston, Jan. 17th, 1913.
"Buy all the shirts if sizes are good."
THE RAYMOND SYNDICATE

New York, Jan. 20, 1913.
"The Vogel shirt stock all shipped today. You will find the sizes and retail selling price on each shirt. You can advertise the entire stock of shirts of William Vogel & Son, Times Square, New York, retired from business. This was one of the best known houses in the city."

William Vogel & Son was one of the most exclusive Men's Furnishing Goods stores in New York. These shirts are the best goods possible to be obtained. Every one is marked with their retail prices, $2.00, $2.50, $3.00 and $3.50 each, all ready for sale by the time you see this notice, choice $1.50. Nothing like it ever known in Boston.
Yours truly,
RAYMOND.
Where you bot the hat.

"BRICKS WITHOUT STRAW"

Is Chamberlin Vindicated?

Why Grand Trunk Suspended Construction in New England.

The following despatch from Boston was published by the Wall Street Journal January 22nd.

When President Chamberlin of the Grand Trunk suspended the construction of the Providence line he said:

"To be frank the difficulty is to raise money. Mr. Fitzhugh used all the money that we received from the sale of bonds and we could not seem to get any more during the state of apprehension that exists in the money market over the uncertainty of what the Balkan war may lead to."

The money markets have now improved. There is a lessening in the financial tension in London and the bankers ventured last week to offer at 94 the Grand Trunk Pacific 4% branch line loans of £479,300.

The public subscribed to £130,000, or less than $650,000, and the underwriting bankers were landed with about three-fourths, or exactly 73% of the loan.

This, of course, holds up the Grand Trunk credit until the London markets are more propitious.

President Chamberlin is now vindicated in his declaration that money and nothing else caused the cessation of the Grand Trunk construction in New England.

The Grand Trunk people say today, as they have said since the stoppage of the work, that construction was only temporarily suspended and that when they can raise the money they will build into Providence.

Perhaps New England people will some time be able to answer the question whether the proper way to raise money for railroad construction in New England is to get a New York grand jury to indict London bankers, Canadian railroad officials and the New England railroad system, because work has stopped as the money gave out. Spending money you did not have used to be considered the crime, but, according to justice as now dispensed from Washington, through New York, for New England, the Egyptians must continue to make bricks after the straw has been used up.

A new grand jury has been impaneled at New York. But can Washington and New York combined force bricks without straw, however willing may be the hands of the Canadians or the Egyptians?

Major Henry L. Higginson, Boston's leading banker, says:

"There need be no occasion for surprise in the practical failure of London bankers to sell Grand Trunk securities. I think Chamberlin told the truth when he stopped construction hereabouts. He stopped because he had to.

"We are getting a lot of outside assistance to help New England commit suicide by indicting the railroads, the bankers, the constructing men, and the very capital that we need here. It is amazing to note the insanity of the public that refused to consider in the houses of legislation, or elsewhere, the question of the financial backing or the credits of the Grand Trunk when it entered New England. The public and some Rhode Island and New York papers are running a race to have the best friends of New England indicted—the only men who can raise the capital for New England railroad construction and development.

"What we need is to make the best out of the present situation and build up rather than tear down. Not only the Grand Trunk but the Boston & Maine needs credit to be of service to the public. How are we helping credit by these attacks? Mr. Hays did not know where the $200,000,000 was coming from when he allowed his associates to promise new railroad construction to Providence and Boston, and Mr. Chamberlin had to stop when the money gave out. The problem now is to get more money into New England, not to drive capital and enterprise and construction away."

The Beginning of Marriage

Haphazard Reflections on Grave Topics

Copyright, 1912, by American-Journal-Examiner

At stated times we mortals have stated visitations.

One day it is the grippe, next day the financial problem.

Just now it is the marriage and divorce question, with much learned expounding by the good and the pure, such as bishops and members of Sorosis.

What is marriage? How did it begin? Whence does it come? Why is it a feature of human life wherever that life is found?

You must begin with such questions. Always study beginnings. Nothing can be learned by taking hold of a thing in the middle and examining its imperfections.

The first priest to join man and woman together was no benign being with lawn sleeves and soul-stirring words.

Marriage was brought about on this earth by the will and wisdom of God Almighty working through primitive babyhood.

In the old days, when the world was cruder, men and women ran wild through forests and swamps. They fought nature, fought each other, as savage as other beasts around them. There was no love; there was no marriage. The instincts of self-preservation and of reproduction worked alone to keep the race here through its hard childhood.

But in cold stone caves or in rough nests under fallen tree trunks savage children were born and nursed by their savage mothers with savage affection.

Through those infants of the stone age, or of ages much earlier marriage and pure affection came into the world.

It is not hard to reproduce in our minds the picture of the first marriage.

A savage woman, half human, half ape, with rough, matted locks hanging round her face, sits holding her new-born baby, protecting it from wind and cold.

It is a queer baby, covered perhaps with reddish hair, its brow no higher than a rat's. Its jaw protrudes; its tiny, grimy hands clutch with monkey power all things within reach.

Along comes the father, full of plans to kill a mammoth or a cave bear; interested in his stone-tipped club, but caring nothing for the mother, who has been for some time only a whining nuisance.

He stops for a second to look at the small creature which he has added to earth's animal life.

Its misshapen skull, ferret eyes, miniature shoulders—something about it reminds him of his royal self, as studied in the pool. He stoops to look closer. His bristly hairs are grabbed, and a weird, insane, toothless grin lights up the little monkey face.

Then the savage takes a new view of life; there the marriage institution and the marriage problem are born simultaneously.

Says the mammoth hunter, with whistling words and hoarse throat sounds half articulated:

"I like this baby. He's like me. Let me hold him. Don't you go out with him looking for food, and don't leave him alone while I'm gone. I've got a bear located. No one can beat me killing bears. I'll bring the bear's heart to you this evening. You can give this baby some of the blood. It will do him good. Don't have anything to say to that mammoth hunter in the next swamp. I want you to stick to me. I'll look after you. I have taken a fancy to that baby. He looks very much like me."

Off goes the father, and that savage mother, in a primitive way, is a wife. Hereafter she is to be cared for. Bears will be killed for her, even while she has children to keep her busy and unattractive. Society takes a new turn, and the red-haired baby has done it.

To childhood, helpless and beautiful, we owe marriage and all that growth of morality which is gradually making us really civilized.

The basis of all real growth is altruism; and altruism, the inclination to think more of others than of yourself, came into the world through the cradle.

We owe such civilization as we have acquired to children.

"A softened pressure of an uncouth hand, a human gleam in an almost animal eye, an endearment in an inarticulate voice—feeble things enough. Yet in these faint awakenings lay the hope of the human race."

The influence of childhood has transformed mere animal attraction into unselfish affection. It has substituted family life for savage life. The interests of childhood demand that marriage and its responsibilities be held sacred.

Duty to future generations demands that divorce be made difficult and considered a misfortune.

Marriage, brought into the world through the influence of children, should be dissolved only with due regard for the interests of children.

An unhappy marriage is earth's worst affliction. Quite true. But it is not affliction wasted.

Examples are needed to warn the young against the matrimonial recklessness which underlies most unhappy marriages.

Unhappy wives and husbands are human lighthouses—lonely, but useful.

If a gentle little Alderney calf should marry a sleek young zebra and afterward get kicked to death for her pains, we should all sympathize with her. But we should expect other mild-eyed Alderneys after that to beware of zebras.

As a matter of fact, this present divorce talk, which sets the good to muttering, really interests a very unimportant class.

The man who spends his life spending what he didn't earn, feeding his physical senses, who goes from rum to the races, from the races to the opera, and from the opera to roulette, wears out his nervous sensations.

He then thinks that he is unhappily married. He has possibly driven his wife to bring seven kinds of a fool.

But that is not her fault.

A man who marries a woman undertakes to make her happy and keep her busy. If he keeps his contract, she will keep hers.

If he fails, he has no right to experiment on another unfortunate. The divorce class is a self-indulgent, malformed class, not worth notice.

At one time the English law regulated the conditions under which a man might beat his wife. "The stick," said the law, "must not be thicker than the husband's thumb."

Some Englishmen have very thick thumbs, and the law was doubtless hard on some thin, worn-out women.

But that law is no longer needed.

Men have outgrown the need of regulations in wife-beating. In time they will outgrow the need of laws regarding infidelity and lack of mutual self-respect.

ON

A Brave Girl—Courage She Shows in Face of Overwhelming Odds Should Make Us All Ashamed to Be Despondent

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1913 by Star Company.

LET me today do something which shall take
A little sadness from the world's vast store;
And may I be so favored as to make
Of joy's too scanty sum, a little more.
Let me not hurt, by any selfish deed,
Or thoughtless word, the heart of foe or friend;
Nor would I pass, unseeing, worthy need,
Or sin by silence, when I should defend.
However meagre be my worldly wealth,
Let me give something that shall aid my kind;
A word of courage, or a thought of health,
Dropped as I pass for troubled hearts to find.
Let me tonight look back across the span
Twixt dawn and dark, and to my conscience say,
"Because of some good act to boast or man
The world is better that I lived today."

IF you are thinking your life is unsatisfactory, or that Fate has used you unfairly, it might set a new idea in your mind, were you to write a letter to Miss Edith Myers, Brush Valley, Pa., and ask her to tell you something of her experiences.

This girl is totally deaf, and both her legs have been amputated. Yet she dates her letter "Sunshine Castle," and says she has been getting along nicely and feeling very contented, until of late, when she has been troubled with severe headaches; and these headaches have become so painful that she is discouraged.

"All My Friends of Old Have Gone," Is Her Pitiful Cry

"All my friends of old," she says, "have gone out into the world to do things; and I feel like a caged lion.

"I do not mind it so much in the Summer; but now that I can no longer stay out in the sunshine, it is terribly hard for me.

"Yesterday I cried nearly all day.

"I am sadly in need of financial aid; and all my efforts to earn money meet with failure."

Imagine this girl with both legs amputated and totally deaf, making brave endeavors to earn a living! Think of it, you idle men who sit playing bridge all day and all night in fashionable clubs; think of it, you able-bodied youths and young women, who are going about the world in a half-hearted way, pretending to make a livelihood, and complaining that no one has ever given you a lift, and that life has not opened the door to the right opportunity to develop the best in you!

Think of it, you wives with good comfortable homes, who complain because you have to do housework for your own families; and think of it, you women of fashion who yawn in beds of ease, wondering what you can do during the day to relieve the dulness of stupid life!

Then, after you have thought about it, try to see what you CAN DO ABOUT IT.

Write a letter to Edith Myers, at Brush Valley, Pa., and send her a dollar and a word of cheer; and if this reaches the eye of any man or woman of influence in the State of Pennsylvania, let some effort be made for the organized charities of that prosperous State to do something toward the maintenance of this unfortunate girl.

If there is any woman's club in the vicinity of Brush Valley, Pa., it should be the pleasure of that organization to exert itself for the benefit of Edith Myers. Or any Pennsylvania State societies in New York city.

Sufferer's Brave Words Should Make Us Ashamed

The brave words of such a sufferer as this make us all ashamed of our moods of despondency and dissatisfaction.

"All Summer I was very happy, studying and working; but my headaches have compelled me to give up my studies," she says.

All readers of this article who were born in Pennsylvania, or who ever lived there, ought to feel a sense of personal obligation toward making an effort to relieve the sufferings and needs of which the letter speaks.

How fleet is a glance of the mind!
Compared with the speed of its flight
The tempest itself lags behind,
And the swift winged arrows of light.
—COWPER.

ADVICE

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

I SUPPOSE our old friend Adam was the only man on earth
Who never had advice,
Who never, in his sadder moods, or in his hours of mirth,
Was given good advice.
When he chawed that raw old apple and the world began to hum,
When he hoofed it from the Garden and the outlook outlooked grim,
Vice was launched upon the planet, but advice was yet to come—
Vice's neighbor, good advice.

Now our deep sea friend, old Noah, when he tinkered with his ark,
Was given good advice.
A lot of wise ones said, "Beware of sailing in the dark!"
It seemed like good advice.
But Noah heard the good advice and finished up his boat,
And over to Mount Ararat he took a little float,
He heard them out with patience, but he didn't give a groat
For all their good advice.

Advice comes often from the heart—from some good friend and true,
Who hates to give advice;
Some friend who gently chides because he thinks a lot of you.
And hands you real advice.
But after all is said and done, and when his song is sung,
No matter how you love him or how silvery is his tongue,
You'll simply smile and walk away—and keep on getting stung.
What good is good advice?
